CHARTER OAK STOVE

EXCELSIOR MFG. COMPANY.

To the Public.

In establishing our first factory, we had in view the manufacture of Wrought-Iron Ranges that would more fully supply the demand for something better in the way of a cooking apparatus than the ordinary cast-iron stoves or ranges—ranges that would be suitable and specially adapted for the largest hotels and institutions and for families—but we did not anticipate the very large demand for a class of goods, and soon found it necessary crease our manufacturing facilities. Our new ory (19th and Washington Avenue) was erected equipped with all the improved machinery ied to produce the goods more expeditiously, omically, and more strictly first-class. During stay in the old factory, and for some months removing to our new one, we did not feel jus d in reducing prices much below those of the inary wrought-iron ranges; but the time has come when we feel that with our facilities we ht to furnish our goods not only below the ices of other wrought-iron ranges, but also very le in advance of any first-class cast-iron stove or ge. We have arrived at this conclusion after deliberation, feeling that our increased sales l more than cover the reduction in prices.

MOTHERS' FRIEND.

MAKES CHILD-BIRTH EASY

The time has come at last when the terrible agony incident to this very critical period in a woman's life can be avoided. A distinguished physician, who passed the greatest portion of his life (forty-four years) in this branch of practice, left to child-bearing women this priceless legacy and life-saving appliance, "THE MOTHERS' FRIEND," and to-day there are thousands of the best women in our land who, having used this wonderful remedy before confinement, rise up and call his name blessed.

We receive letters from every section of the country thanking us for placing this preparation in the reach of suffering woman. One lady from North Carolina writes us that she would like to thank the proprietors on her knees for bringing it to her notice, as in a previous confinement she had two doctors, and they were compelled to use chloroform, instruments, etc., and she suffered almost death; but this time she used "MOTHERS' FRIEND," and her labor was short, quick and almost like magic. Now, why should a woman suffer when she can avoid it? We can prove all we claim by living witnesses, and any one interested can call, or have their husbands do so, at our office, and see the original letters, which we cannot publish.

This remedy is one about which we cannot publish certificates, but it is a most wonderful liniment to be used after the first two or three months.

Send for our treatise on the Health and Happiness of Woman, mailed free, which gives all particulars.

Rheumatism

Though painful and wearing almost beyond endurance, is not an incurable disease if treated in time. Perhaps no other disease has so baffled the efforts of science and medicine as this, but at last a remedy has been discovered in Tongaline which CURES RHEUMATISM, and is heartily endorsed by many of the Leading Physicians.

WHAT THEY SAY:

"TONGALINE is doing all that is claimed it will do."
G. C. SEIFERT, M. D., Cantrall, Ill.

"Had a case of Inflammatory Rheumatism of nearly all the large joints. Gave TONGALINE, and to-day my patient is out and doing well."
W. W. BAXTER, M. D., Herman, Ill.

"In my opinion TONGALINE supercedes all other so-called rheumatic remedies."
S. C. WORSHAM, M. D., Marengo, Ill.

"Have given TONGALINE a fair trial, and think it the best remedy I have ever found for Rheumatism."

FUNNY FIGURES.

Ferdinand Ward Makes a Statement of His Financial Operations.

Names of Heavy Debtors of Grant & Ward Not Made Public—The Assignee Doubts Some of Ward's Statements—Extract From the Schedules.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, September 30.—Acting under the advice of his counsel Ferdinand Ward yesterday decided not to make public the names of the persons whom he claims had absorbed the property of the firm of Grant & Ward. He was closeted with his counsel all afternoon, and in the evening he emerged from the luxurious gloom of his rooms in Ludlow Street Jail long enough to say that Messrs. Davies & Johnson could make the names public if they wished to. "I have prepared schedules," he said, "and given them up to Mr. Davies and Mr. Johnson, which show what disposition was made of the money of the firm of Grant & Ward, and the names of the parties who received it, and the amounts received by each one of them. One of these statements shows that I paid out from 1880 to 1884 $633,000 for my personal account. It also shows that of this amount I invested $513,000 in real estate and personal property, all of which I conveyed to Mr. Warner the morning after our failure, and which property my assignee is seeking to recover from Mr. Warner for the benefit of my creditors. This leaves a balance of $120,000 expended by me in living expenses during these four years, but included in this sum is $129,000 received by me in dividends from the Evening Star Mine, my individual property, besides other considerable sums received from other sources. This proves that none of the money of Grant & Ward has been appropriated by me for my personal use in any way. Whatever wrong I have committed in the transaction of the business of that firm has inured to the benefit of other people, and not myself. But pending my trial, which is expected to come on next month, my counsel objects to my volunteering any statement of the names of parties who have received this money beyond what I have made as a witness in case of Mr. Holt, my assignee, against Mr. Warner. I have no objection, however, to either Mr. Davies or Mr. Johnson making any or all the statements public." When Mr. Davies was asked to make public the names of the persons referred to by Ward as having absorbed the Grant & Ward moneys, he said that there were only ten or twelve persons named in Ward's schedules, whose transactions with Grant & Ward had not been made public. The entire ten or twelve represented only $130,000, and of this sum $40,000 represented the profits in stock transactions by one man, who, Mr. Davies knew, claims to have been a heavy loser by the transactions. A synopsis of the schedules furnished to Mr. Davies is as follows: James D. Fish, $1,000,000; Marine Bank, $320,000; W. S. Warner, $1,900,000; Ferdinand Ward, $638,000; expenses and losses of the firm during the term of its existence, $370,000; cost of securities of Grant & Ward now in the hands of Davies as receiver, $380,000. The ten or twelve gentlemen whose names are withheld, $130,000; Mayor Grace, $150,000; Tony Bingham, the Grants and others, $350,000; total, $4,628,000. "These figures," said Mr. Davies, "are only approximate. I have not the papers here, and so can speak only from memory. I have had to deal with an incomplete set of books; only the check-books were reliable and trustworthy. Regarding the Warner matter,

WARD'S STATEMENTS HAVE BEEN VERIFIED

and have been found to be in the main correct. As to Fish, the Marine Bank and Ward himself, I believe Ward's statements to be correct, but the rest of the statements I doubt very much. I will give you an instance: In one case that I know of a gentleman is charged with $6,000 profits for discounting Grant & Ward's notes; yet that gentleman proved to me by notes and correspondence that he had on hand $25,000 of their paper which he had discounted at 6 per cent, thus showing that he had lost $26,000. Such being the condition of affairs as regards one man, it is not fair to accept Ward's statements in regard to the others until they are verified. Ward's statement in regard to the Grants is not correct. After taking into consideration the money put into the firm by the Grants, I have no doubt that each of the Grants lost a large amount of money. Ward's statements are one-sided. They give the debits, but not the credits. They mention only the money paid out, and not the money taken in. Ward charges Mayor Grace with $150,000. I don't undertake to say that this is correct, and I know that Grace claims to have $70,000 worth of Grant & Ward's paper. Grace's account has not been gone over yet and I cannot say whether Grace came out ahead or not."

"Who are the ten or twelve gentlemen mentioned in the schedules?" was asked.

"I don't know any of them personally," said Mr. Davies. "None of them are clients of mine, and none are in any way prominent in public life. I can't even remember the names of any of them. Some of them are in business down town, I believe. None of them are politicians. I do not wish to give their names because I want to deal fairly with every one. If Ward wanted these names made public why didn't he make them public himself? To be fair with every one, I must verify all these statements before making the names public. These men had no connection with the Ward transactions. They only made a little money by discounting Grant & Ward's paper." Mr. Davies said that he thought it unlikely that Ward had any great amount of property hidden away.

A GALLOWS HORROR.

Patrick Hartnett, the Wife Murderer, Almost Decapitated This Morning.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 30.—At 1:25 this morning, Patrick Hartnett, the Cincinnati wife murderer, paid the penalty of his crime by being executed. September 4 had been set for the hanging, but Governor Hoadly reprieved the condemned man until September 30, in order that the Supreme Court might pass upon a writ of error. The Court refused to interfere. Yesterday the doomed man was informed of the Court's decision, and while there was a noticeable lack of the bravado he had displayed, he took the news quietly. He retired at 10 o'clock last night and slept until 11:30, when the death warrant was read to him. At midnight he ate a hearty lunch and sat down to await the coming of the hangman, which occurred at 1 o'clock. At 1:25 the drop was sprung and a sickening scene occurred. The drop was too long and the head of the victim was nearly torn from his body, only a small shred of flesh connecting the trunk with the head. One of the deputies shortly afterwards cut the body down. The crime was committed on January 30, 1884, at Mt. Auburn, a suburb of Cincinnati. He made his wife kneel down and say her prayers, meanwhile, accusing her of unfaithfulness. She denied it and the brute smashed in her head with an axe in full view of her five children. He then seized a candle and jewsharp, danced a jig and played a tune, shouting "Jesus, Mary, come and help me," and acting under a religious frenzy. He was captured with difficulty and lodged in jail.

BARTLEY'S BAD LUCK.

His "Paquita" Company Threaten to Strike for Back Salaries.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, September 30.—All the actors and actresses engaged at the Fourteenth Street Theater in Bartley Campbell's Mexican drama, "Paquita," went to the theater early yesterday morning hoping to draw their salaries. The first to come was Miss Kate Forsyth, and among the others were Miss Eloise Willis, who formerly was with the Union Square Theater and has been taking the part of the French maid Lucette in "Paquita", Miss Ida Vernon, the Senora Marie, Miss Maud Stuart and three or four other ladies. The masculine part of the company was drawn up in line, headed by H. M. Pitt, and had in its ranks C. M. Flockton, Herbert Ayling, Charles Rosene and several others. Then there was a compact army of chorus girls, all of whom wanted to pay their board and didn't see how they were going to do it.

The ladies and gentlemen were told that Mr. Campbell had been called away to Baltimore, and were asked if they couldn't wait till evening. That they couldn't and wouldn't was the general opinion expressed on all sides. Miss Forsyth put her small foot down very emphatically, and told Campbell's representative if the week and a half salary due her wasn't paid her by night "Paquita" would have to pull through with another Hortense. The other ladies and gentlemen took the same view of the matter and made things very lively around the theatre.

The simple explanation of this state of affairs lies in the fact that "Paquita" has not been making money, and Campbell cannot touch his private fortune to relieve the pressure. It was a common report on the Square yesterday that the playwright was going to pieces physically and pecuniarily. In regard to Campbell's physical condition much has been written and a great deal more of gossip has been indulged in, and it is given as the explanation of his monetary embarrassment.

"He came in here last night," said a gentleman connected with the Star Theater, and said he wanted to see the play. I gave him a seat, and at the end of the first act he came out and called me aside in the most secret fashion. He asked me what we were playing. He had been looking at the performance through one act and at the conclusion of it didn't know what the play was."

of the Fourteenth Street Theater one of the ladies of the company said: "He never attended the rehearsals, but spent his time fishing; as a consequence, everything became tangled up in the most charming fashion. His property being in his wife's name as much as in his, and not being on the best of friendship with her, he couldn't sell any of his real estate in order to pay for his errors of judgment without her consent. The consequence is that the salaries are not paid."

"I have not received money enough to pay for my costumes," said Miss Forsyth, "and unless I get money very soon I shall certainly not play. 'Paquita' only paid the first night. Since then the houses have been very poor. One night there was only $25 worth of tickets sold. The play is being kept on here only as an advertisement for it when it goes on the road. Mr. Campbell leaves to-morrow for San Francisco, where the play will be produced. There was trouble the very first week on account of salaries, and, although it was tided over then, there has been a repetition of the scenes regularly every week since."

"The parts have all been changed around," said Miss Eloise Willis, "and the salaries are not yet paid. If Miss Forsyth doesn't act I have her part, Hortense, under study, but I will not play it."

"The trouble is," broke in Miss Forsyth, "we don't stand together as we should. Here I am the only one who will not go on to-night unless my salary is paid."

"Oh, then," answered her friend, "I'll strike, too, and to-night. No money, no play. The only thing I'll play unless I get my money will be the fatal bullet."

It is not known what agreement has been entered into between Campbell's agents and the company to keep the theater open a few days longer. Samuel Colville, the lessee of the theater, said Mr. Campbell had taken the house for four years, dating from September 1. Some of the articles of the agreement Campbell had complied with and some he had not. There will be due Mr. Colville $9,000 from Campbell Thursday morning. This money, the people on the Square said, Campbell could not possibly pay. If he does not, it is probable the theater will be closed. There was considerable talk in the evening to the effect that Campbell might be arrested and placed in Ludlow Street Jail until the salaries are paid. There was no one to take the necessary initiatory steps, however, and Campbell will leave to-day for San Francisco.

BEFORE HIS WIFE'S EYES.

A Young Man Beaten to Death by Three Roughs at Wilkesbarre, Pa.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

WILKESBARRE, PA., September 30.—Chas. Tischer, 28 years old, was killed early yesterday morning on the public street before his wife's eyes, and despite her appeals in his behalf. He was on his way home about 2:30 o'clock a. m. with his wife and a friend, named Long, and wife, when the party was assaulted by Charles Sharp, Henry Kloss and Fred Walters, who had been lying in wait for Tischer. The three men had previously been ejected from a ball-room for disorderly conduct and they blamed Tischer for it. They had armed themselves with palings torn from a fence, and they assaulted the party with these weapons. Tischer was beaten to the ground and his head terribly battered. Long was also knocked down, but not seriously injured. In attempting to shield her husband, Mrs. Tischer received a severe blow on the arm from a club. On the arrival of some neighbors the three men ran away. Tischer was carried to a neighboring hotel. His skull was fractured and he died in the afternoon. The three murderers were lodged in jail, having been arrested soon after the affair.

A LIFE FOR A NICKEL.

Fatal Termination of a Gambling Game Between Negroes at Waynesboro, Ga.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

WAYNESBORO, GA., September 30.—At a negro festival Monday night a gambling game was in progress, the stakes being a nickel. Sam Shewmaker, a notorious desperado, asked to be admitted, whereupon Mike Lowry drew out his money. Instantly lights were extinguished, when Lowry attacked Shewmaker with a knife. Shewmaker escaped by climbing through a chimney and coming out at the top. He went home, got his rifle, and, returning to the festival, found it in full progress. Resting his rifle on the window sill, he took aim at Lowry and sent the charge through his head. Lowry fell dead and the party was broken up. Shewmaker was arrested yesterday. The negroes are strongly excited against him, and talk of lynching.

THE AXLE BROKE.

A Serious Accident on the Indiana, Bloomington and Western Railroad.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL., September 30.—This morning the west-bound passenger train on the Indianapolis, Bloomington and Western Railroad met with a serious accident at Downs' Station, seven miles from this city. Before reaching the town, and while the train was going at a high rate of speed, the axle of the engine tender broke in two, throwing the engine from the track and down an embankment. The baggage car and three coaches were ditched and badly wrecked. There was the greatest excitement among the passengers, but fortunately nobody was killed. The list of those injured is about a dozen, but it is thought now that none have been fatally hurt.

SKIPPED WITH $2,500.

A Franklin Avenue Furniture Dealer Robbed By His Hired Man.

Jacob Martine, who keeps a furniture store at 2023 Franklin avenue and resides in the room in the rear, yesterday hired a German, who gave the name of John, to work in the store. The man slept in the store last night, but this morning had disappeared, and Mr. Martine soon discovered that during the night he had forced open a drawer in the desk and stolen $2,500, consisting of five or six $100 bills, ten $50s and the balance in small bills. He offers a reward of $300 for the arrest of the thief and recovery of the money. The missing man is described as five feet six inches high, 28 years of age, of a smooth face, light complexion and hair, and as dressed in a dark gray suit and brown straw hat.

TURKEY CRIPPLED.

The Sultan's Army in a Deplorable Condition.

A Discovery Causing Consternation in Official Circles at Constantinople—Turkish Troops Defeated in a Skirmish—Active War Preparations by the Porte—The Montreal Riots—Disastrous Floods in Switzerland—Foreign News.

LONDON, September 30.—A dispatch from Constantinople, received this afternoon, says: "Considerable consternation prevails in official circles over an important discovery just made by Alib Sahib Pasha, the new minister of war. Immediately on being installed in his new position, Alib Sahib Pasha ordered all the various department commanders to report the strength of their respective commands and their present condition, and detailed several officers to inspect the various posts. Their reports have been received and show that under Ghazi Osman Pasha, the late Minister of War, who was dismissed on September 25, the army was almost entirely neglected and the large sums of money voted for military purposes were used in other ways than than those for which they were designed. The inquiry has revealed that the Adrianople army, which was supposed to be 15,000 strong, contains not half that number of men. The soldiers have no uniforms and are shoeless. The cavalry is unable to march, owing to a lack of horses and the necessary accoutrements. Four hundred horses and 2,000 men, who have been fully equipped, are under orders to march at an hour's notice.

A TURKISH DEFEAT.

Four ironclads are actually preparing for sea, but there are only 600 tons of coal available, and their departure may possibly be delayed on that account. Yesterday Turkish troops fired on the Roumelean outposts at Mustova Pasha, a town in Roumelia, twenty miles northwest of Adrianople. The outposts were immediately reinforced and a skirmish ensued, in which the Turks were defeated and forced to retreat, carrying with them a number of wounded.

INVASION OF MACEDONIA STOPPED.

PHILIPPOPOLIS, September 30.—Prince Alexander has ordered a number of armed bands of Bulgarians, who were preparing to invade Macedonia, to return to Bulgaria. Two Servian revolutionary chiefs have been arrested and confined in a fortress in Bulgaria.

THE PORTE'S WAR PREPARATIONS.

CONSTANTINOPLE, September 30.—The indications to-day point to active war preparations by the Porte. Eighty battalions of the first class reserves are being mobilized in the districts bordering on the Black Sea at points which will facilitate the transportation of troops for duty in Roumelia, in the event of the Sultan being compelled to adopt extreme measures to settle the Roumelian difficulty. The transportation department is actively engaged in furnishing means for the concentration of troops at the most available points for an advance on Roumelia. Three battalions of infantry and a company of artillery stationed on the Island of Crete, have been ordered to Adrianople.

The Dominion.

LAST NIGHT'S DISTURBANCES.

MONTREAL, September 30.—Only two small disturbances occurred last night. One at the Grey Nunnery and the other, later, on the Champ de Mars. The police had received information that a mob would assemble at the latter place, and a strong force was on hand. On becoming unruly the crowd was quickly dispersed. A man named Urgloire Therein was arrested for inciting the crowd. Joseph Pirrult and his son were also arrested. Everything is quiet this morning. The large force of militia called out has evidently had a good effect. No further serious trouble is anticipated. Public feeling is completely aroused by the conduct of the rioters, and the police are denounced on all sides for their seeming want of courage. The authorities are resolved to carry out the health laws vigorously, and will take whatever steps are necessary for that purpose.

THE RIOTERS THREATENING.

Everything is still quiet and no danger is at present feared, but some of Monday night's rioters have expressed their determination to keep quiet while the volunteers remain under arms and to renew the attack as soon as there is any laxity in the present precautions. A large number of special constables are likely to be sworn in. The returns at the Health Office show forty-two deaths from small-pox in the city yesterday, six in St. Jean Baptiste village, six in St. Cunegonde, two in Cote St. Louis and one in St. Henri. St. Henri, although recalcitrant at first, is now doing good work. Yesterday 313 people were vaccinated, seven houses disinfected, twenty-eight placards posted and nine yards cleaned. The police are searching every possible place for small-pox patients.

THE AMERICAN QUARANTINE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 30.—Instructions have been sent to Sergeant Austin of the Marine Hospital service to remain at Burlington, Vt., until the inspection service now in operation is fully organized. Information having been received that employes of the Grand Trunk Railway are in constant communication with their families who reside in Canadian districts infected with small-pox, instructions have been made for strict quarantine on that road.

Switzerland.

DISASTROUS FLOODS.

BERNE, September 30.—Heavy floods are reported throughout the eastern portion of Switzerland. The Tomba Bridge, which is near Thusis, a town in the Canton of Grisons, has been destroyed, and the Tardis Bridge is badly damaged. The whole of the Upper Rhine Valley has been inundated. Horses, cattle and other live stock have been swept away and the harvest destroyed by the floods. The Splugdeon Pass, a route across the Rhaitan Alps, between the Grisons and Lumbardy, is blocked by heavy snow storms.

Germany.

RESULT OF MANTON MARBLE'S VISIT.

BERLIN, September 30.—The Central Union of German Manufacturers, representing the leaders of the protection party, has petitioned Prince Bismarck, asking him to inquire into the subject of bi-metallism. The petition is the outcome of the visit of Mr. Manton Marble, the American delegate, who was sent abroad to inquire into the silver question. Mr. Marble left here in consequence of orders from President Cleveland to make a report by the time Congress opens. Mr. Marble's task is to obtain the opinions of the most prominent diplomatic and financial officials on the repeal or continuance of the Bland Bill. He has obtained from German bankers approval of the idea of a monetary conference. It is thought, however, that the success of such a conference would depend largely upon England's joining it, and that she would do so is considered doubtful.

BELLEVILLE.

A Sensation and a Pistol Shot Followed by a Marriage.

Pretty Ida Wibley Brings Serious Charges Against George Reutchler—A Wedding Settles the Whole Trouble—News and Notes.

A sensation which is agitating Belleville society to-day developed here last night. Yesterday evening, Miss Ida Wibley, the adopted daughter of Mr. J. K. Mullen, a well-known citizen, appeared before Squire Guentz and had a warrant issued for the arrest of Mr. George Reutchler, the son of one of the wealthiest and most respected citizens of Belleville, on a charge of seduction. The warrant was placed in the hands of Constable Obst, who started out to execute it. Some friends of young Reutchler heard of Miss Wibley's action, and going to the Reutchler residence called for George and informed him of the facts. Rentchler immediately got his hat and overcoat and at once started for the Southeastern Depot, his intention being to take the train for St. Louis. He had not been gone more than five minutes when Constable Obst came and requested to see him. The constable was told that George had just left, and surmising that the young fellow had received warning of his and would endeavor to take one of the outgoing trains, he hurried in the direction of the depot. As he turned down Walnut street he caught sight of Rentchler some distance ahead and walking rapidly. He called to him to him to stop, but Rentchler reorganizing the constable started to run. Constable Obst gave chase, and again called on Rentchler to stop. Rentchler, however, only ran faster, and when Obst saw that he was liable to escape he fired a shot in the air to stop him. The shot had the desired effect for Rentchler immediately came to a stand-still. The constable read the warrant to him, and the two then came back up town to the Police Station. Rentchler was taken before 'Squire Bauman without much delay and his bail fixed at $1,200. Meantime his father had been notified and coming down to the Justice's office went security for his son's appearance, and father and son then went home. The father and son had a conference as to what was best to be done, and the conclusion they arrived at may be surmised from the fact that this morning young Remchler came into County Clerk Rhein's office with Miss Wilby and requested that a marriage license be issued. The desired document was given them, and the marriage is said to have taken place shortly before noon at the residence of Mr. Mullen, the bride's adopted father. Rentchler is one of the best known young men in the city, and moved in the best society. Miss Wilby, who is only 18 years of age, and is possessed of many attractions, was also considered considerable of a belle. She attended Franklin School, and was much esteemed by her teachers and schoolmates. It has been noticed for some time past that Rentchler was paying her great attentions, but nothing wrong was ever even hinted at.

Notes.

The Directors of the Public Library meet this evening.

George Vogel and John Buner were arrested in the West End last evening on a charge of stealing a lot of miners' tools from Horst's mines on the Freeburg road. They were given an examination and their bond placed at $200, failing to furnish which they were sent to jail.

The Water Works were tested to-day and proved a perfect success.

The laying of the corner stone of the new jail has been postponed until Monday.

The following indictments were returned by the Grand Jury last evening: Alice Snyder, robbery; Thomas Millet, failing to provide scales for weighing coal at the Mentor Mines; Martin Kane, burglary; George Miller, larceny, and William Jones, burglary.

The Criminal Court.

Dr. John L. Fitzporter was a couple of hours late in reaching the Criminal Court this morning to answer to the charge of subornation of perjury in the Scheel matter. He was jailed for an hour on arrival, but released on paying $7 50 costs, the forfeiture set aside and his case dismissed. Gustav H. Scheel, who tried to go on Fitzporter's bond when he was arrested some time since, swearing that he owned certain property which was never his, was then brought up for trial. The principal witness was Judge Noonan, who administered the oath.

The case of Wm. D. Longnecker, charged with enticing females, was continued for the State to the first day of next term. The case of Jos. Godfrey and Jack Scott, charged with robbery, was also continued for the State.

MISSOURI PATRONAGE.

The President Does Not Want to Be Hurried.

Interview of Senators Cockrell and Vest With the President—Appointments for Federal Offices in St. Louis to be Carefully Considered—Prof. Agassiz Declines—Missouri and Arkansas Postmasters—Washington News.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 30.—Senators Cockrell and Vest, after the Cabinet meeting yesterday, had an appointment with the President to discuss the question of patronage in Missouri, and especially the offices of postmaster, surveyor, marshal, district attorney and collector at St. Louis. There was a pleasant interchange of views between the two Senators and the President, and the interview was prolonged until a late hour in the afternoon. Speaking of the matter to-day Senator Cockrell said that nothing definite was agreed upon, although there was a general talk on the subject of patronage. Such important positions could not be settled in a few minutes talk and the President stated that he would require time to consider the matter. "Meanwhile, the people to be effected must possess their souls in patience a little longer," said Senator Cockrell, "for I doubt if the President will settle things finally for several days yet. There are a number of papers filed with each application and these must be examined before a conclusion can be reached. One thing I want to deny most emphatically," continued the Senator, "is the story that a conference of the Missouri Delegation has been held for the purpose of

of the State. No such meeting was held, nor have I been invited to any such meeting. We had enough of the last conference which was held here last March, when a slate was agreed upon only to be broken. Hardly an evening passes that I am not visited by Missouri people, and of course, politics, both state and national are discussed. But this is as far as it goes. There is no Star Chamber work being carried on; at least I am not a party to it. Every Congressman now in the city from Missouri has his hands and head full of business for his constituents and cannot find time for anything else. As far as I could judge from the tenor of the President's conversation with Senator Vest and myself, he is disposed to take action in as speedily as possible, but he will not be hurried. Since our arrival here, neither Senator Vest nor myself have talked together half an hour, but we will work harmoniously to secure good representative men for the Missouri offices. Of course each applicant considers his the most important, and grows tired and impatient if action is not taken right away in his interest, but, as I said before, these things take time. At all the departments that I have visited, I have found the affairs promptly administered, and I have no complaints to make in this respect, and my constituents must understand that everything possible is being done for them. One thing is certain, however, I shall not leave Washington until these federal appointments are made, and Senator Vest will do likewise."

THE CANDIDATES.

For the Surveyorship the contest seems to have narrowed down to Lancaster and Lewis, although the other candidates are pretty well indorsed. Representative John M. Glover sticks to Lewis and will not consent to his withdrawel, while Senators Cockrell and Vest are equally firm in their support of Lancaster. At the Treasury Department while the only statement can be obtained is that the Surveyorship is under consideration, nothing can be divulged about it. On account of the absence of Attorney-General Garland nothing has been attempted in the cases of the Marshalship and District Attorney, but the latest information says that the Attorney-General will be here the latter part of the week. Until then, neither Senator will attempt to force matters. There are no new developments in the Postmastership except that all the papers have been sent from the Post Office Department for the information of the President. All the candidates now here are working industriously to secure the prize, but it cannot be stated who is leading since there is no first and second in the race, thus far.

COMMISSIONER COLMAN.

Commissioner of Agriculture Colman will leave for St. Louis to-morrow afternoon on the limited express, and expects to reach home by Saturday evening. It is his intention to visit the Exposition at St. Louis, and his trip will be extended a week or ten days. Mr. Colman has just returned from a sojourn at Boston, the greater portion of his time having been spent with the members of the Forestry Convention.

NEW YORK, September 30.—A Washington special to the Post says: "Prof. Alexander Agassiz has found it necessary to decline the office of Superintendent of the Coast Survey because of the duties already resting on him. This decision is greatly regretted by the President."

GETTING AHEAD OF GHOSTS.

Various Superstitions of People Concerning the Return of Spirits.

From the Contemporary Review.

The favorite "beat" of the ghost is usually the spot where he died. Hence, in order to keep him at least from the house, the Kaffirs carry a sick man out into the open air to die and the Maoris used to remove the sick into sheds. If a Kaffir or a Maori died before he could be carried out the house was tabooed and deserted. There are traces in Greece, Rome and China of this custom of carrying dying persons into the open air.

But in case the ghost should, despite of all precautions, make his way back from the grave, steps were taken to barricade the house against him. Thus, in some parts of Russia and East Prussia an axe or a lock is laid on the threshold or a knife is hung over the door, and in Germany as soon as the coffin is carried out of the house all the doors and windows are shut, whereas, so long as the body is still in the house, the windows (and sometimes the doors) are left constantly open to allow the soul to escape. In some parts of England every bolt and lock in the house is unfastened so that the ghost of the dying man may fly freely away.

But if primitive man knew how to bully, he also knew how to outwit the ghost. For example, a ghost can only find his way back to the house by the way by which he left it. This little weakness did not escape the vigilance of our ancestors and they took their measures accordingly. The coffin was carried out of the house, not by the door, but by a hole made for the purpose in the wall, and this hole was carefully stopped up as soon as the body had been passed through it, so that when the ghost strolled quietly back from the grave, he found to his surprise that there was no thoroughfare. The credit of this ingenious device is shared equally by Greenlanders, Hottentots, Bechuanas, Samoieds, Ojibways, Algonkins, Laosians, Hindoos, Tibetans, Siamese, Chinese and Fijians. These special openings, or "doors of the dead," are still to be seen in a village near Amsterdam and they were common in some towns of Central Italy, as Perugia and Assisi. A trace of the same custom survives in Thuringen, where it is thought that the ghost of a man who has been hanged will return to a house if the body be not taken out by a window instead of the door.

The Siamese, not content with carrying the dead man out by a special opening, endeavor to make assurance doubly sure by hurrying him three times around the house at full speed—a proceeding well calculated to bewilder the poor soul in the coffin. The Araucanians adopt the plan of strewing ashes behind the coffin as it is being borne to the grave in order that the ghost may not be able to find his way back.

A BEAUTIFUL LETTER.

Gen. Pike to a Friend Who Received it the Day Before He Died.

The Fort Smith Tribune, September 22, says: We gladly give place to the following beautifully worded letter from Gen. Albert Pike to Dr. Thurston of Van Buren, and received by the latter the day before he died:

WASHINGTON, September 3, 1885.

My Dearest and Best and Truest old Friend—I have just received your loving message sent to me by Mr. Sandels. I had already two days ago learned from our old friend Cush, who had the information from James Stewart, that you were about to go away from us. In a little while I shall follow you, and it will be well for me if I can look forward to the departure, inevitable to all, with the same patience and equanimity with which you are waiting for it.

I do not believe that our intellect and individuality cease to be when the vitality of the body ends. I have a profound conviction, the only real revelation which to me makes absolute certainty, that there is a Supreme Deity, the Intelligence and Lord of the universe, to whom it is not folly to pray. That our convictions come from Him, and in them He does not lie or deceive us; and that there is to be for my very self another, a continued life, in which this life will be as if it had never been, but I shall see and know again those whom I have loved and lost here.

You have led an upright, harmless and blameless life, always doing good, and not wrong and evil. You have enjoyed the harmless pleasures of life, and have never wearied of it, nor thought it had not been a life worth living. Therefore you need not fear to meet whatever life beyond the veil.

Either there is no God, or there is a just and merciful God, who will deal gently and tenderly with the human creatures whom He has made so weak and so imperfect.

There is nothing in the future for you to fear, as there is nothing in the past to be ashamed of. Since I have been compelled by the lengthening of the evening shadow to look forward to my own nearly approaching departure, I do not feel that I lose the friends who go away before me. It is as if they had set sail across the Atlantic sea, to land in an unknown country beyond, whither I shall soon follow, to meet them again.

But, dear old tried friend, I shall feel very lonely after you are gone. We have been friends so long without a moment's intermission, without even one little cloud or shadow of unkindness or suspicion coming between us, that I shall miss you terribly. I shall never have the heart to visit Van Buren again. There are others whom I like there, but none so dear to me as you—none there or anywhere else. As long as I live I shall remember, with loving affection, your ways and looks and words, our glad days passed together in the woods, your many acts of kindness, the old home and the shade of the mulberries, and an intimate communion and intercourse during more than forty-five years.

I had hoped to be with you once more in the woods; but now I shall never be in camp in the woods again. The old friends are nearly all gone; you are going sooner than I to meet them. I shall live a little longer with little left to live for, loving your memory, and loving the wife and daughter who have been so dear to do. Dear, dear old friend, good bye! May our Father who is in heaven have you in His holy keeping and give you eternal rest!

Devotedly your friend, ALBERT PIKE.

Lost His Taste.

From the Detroit Free Press.

I was sleeping in a second-story bedroom of a planter's house in Mississippi, and it was not yet daylight when something roused me up. I was listening to hear the noise repeated when there came such a yell as fairly shook me out of bed. I ran to the open window, but it was too dark outside to see anything. As I stood there listening I heard the clank of a chain, followed by groans, and then all was still. I went back to bed with the idea that some crazy negro was prowling around, and slept till sunrise. Then I looked out and solved the mystery. A few rods away was the smokehouse. A big bear-trap had been set at the door, and it had caught a prize. With one leg held as in a vise, and with his hands grasping a young tree to hold him up, a burly big negro looked up at me and called out:

"Say, boss, but I want to git loose of dis!"

When I went down and told the Colonel he expressed no surprise and took no action until after breakfast. Then we walked out to the smokehouse, and, after looking the prisoner over, he said:

"Does it hurt?"

"Nebber was hurted so in my life, sah."

"Can't you get out?"

"No, sah. I'se bin tryin' eber since minidight, but I can't do it."

"I have hams and shoulders in there."

"Yes, sah, I reckon you has."

"Are you fond of smoked meat?"

"No, sah. I used ter be, but I ain't any mo'. I shall nebber tech smoked meat agin!"

"Like to walk out nights?"

"No, sah. Ize gwine ter bed ebery night at sundown arter dis!"

We got a rail and opened the trap and let him out. He went off dragging his leg behind him, and as he reached the gate he lifted his hat and said:

"Werry much obleeged, Kurkel. If my appetite for hams an' shoulders eber returns I'll keep cl'ar o' dis plantashun, an' doan' you forgit it!"

The Right to Hiss.

From the London News.

The question of the right of hissing at theaters has recently been tried out in France, with the result that the magistrate before whom the case was heard has given his decision in favor of the person who expressed his disapproval of a certain portion of an entertainment by hissing. The offense was committed by a M. X. at the Casino at Lyons, when he challenged the favorable reception of a singer by the claque, and in consequence of his demonstration was taken to the station and charged with disobedience to the orders of the theater police. M. X. defended himself, contending that in hissing a certain song he had exercised an incontestable right. The contention was upheld by the juge de paix, who discharged the accused, relying upon the decision of a superior court, which was to the effect that a member of an audience had as much right to openly express his disapprobation of a performance as others had to manifest their approval.

GROWING GRAVE.

The Street-Car Situation Becoming More Serious.

Committees Call on Various Superintendents—Their Demands Positive—A Refusal Means a Strike—What the Magnates and Men Say.

An ominous aspect was given the rumored street car strike last evening when a delegation of three, representing the Drivers' and Conductors' Union, called on Mr. John Scullin, president of the Union Depot Line, and made demands that were substantially for shorter hours and increased pay. In reply Mr. Scullin did not mince matters at all. He frankly said that he would not yield in a single particular, and that if they wanted to quit work they could do so at any time, and he would fill their places at once. He told them that he did not propose to stand any bulldozing.

said to a POST-DISPATCH reporter to-day: "I was thunderstruck when the men called on me, as I could see no reason for any dissatisfaction. We pay good wages, as good as we can. The conductors receive $2 a day, and $1 75 is the compensation of the drivers. They work each day about thirteen or thirteen and a half hours. This demand is the result of an action taken a few days ago. One of the drivers struck a buggy containing two Catholic priests, throwing them to the ground. Several parties came around and offered to pay the damage to the carriage, but, on investigation, I found that the driver did not seem to care whether he struck the vehicle, and so I ordered his discharge and that of all other employes negligent of their duty. It happened that some men belonging to the organization became subject to the order. Now, this committee came to me last night and said they wanted those men taken back."

"Do you feel at all apprehensive of a strike?"

"When I remember a conversation had with one of the oldest conductors on our line, I do feel a little alarmed. He came into my office and asked if he couldn't get a week off next week. I asked him his reasons, and he said that he was a member of this Union, and as there were indications of trouble during Fair week, he wanted to get off. I told him once and for all that if he left he couldn't come back, and that if he was a member he must stand and face the music."

MR. JULIUS S. WALSH,

president of the Citizens' Railway, was seen, and he said: "My men are all quiet and show no disposition to strike or cause any bad feeling. So far as I know they will not participate in any strike."

MR. JOHN H. MAXON,

President of the Lindell Railway, shook his head decidedly when the probability of a strike was broached. He said: "It is all bosh. There will be no strike. There is some dissatisfaction because there never was a line that didn't have some chronic kickers. But the public can rest assured that the great mass of the men will not be moved."

THE STREET RAILWAY EMPLOYES

do not see why they, as the ones upon whom the extra work is piled during Fair week, should get no benefit from the influx of visitors and the large increase in the business and receipts of the company. On the part of those employed there is some difference of opinion as to the best time for a strike. If it is done during the Fair, the companies might yield then, but only to exert their power when the week was over and discharge and blacklist the participants. The street car employes are gathering into their society all the members they can, while the Knights of Labor are pursuing a policy of preparation by forming themselves into assemblies which can work together when the die is cast. They seem to realize that the situation is serious and that no time can be lost. Whether the strike will extend to all the lines is the momentuous question with those who are dependent upon the street car for transportation and with the business men. It is probable, however, that a day or two will either settle the trouble or develop a strike president of the Broadway Line, was seen this morning. He says a committee calling themselves Knights of Industry called on him yesterday and demanded that he reinstate all the men discharged lately. This he declined to do, as they were discharged for cause. One of his drivers called on him this morning and said the union men had threatened to murder him if he didn't join the union. He was told to go to work and he would be protected.

Ex-Queen Isabella's Favorite.

Paris Letter to London Truth.

Queen Isabella has in attendance on her here the delightful young naval lieutenant who superseded the Marquis de Villa Alta as Master of her Household. This function has been for many years successively discharged by Spanish gentlemen, who were each content to be placed on the intimate and confidential footing of "personal attendant" to Her Majesty. The family name of the last major-domo was Puente, a far from wealthy man, but who, owing to the largesse of his royal patrons and the opportunities his situation afforded him for making lucky hits as an investor, was able, on retiring some four or five years ago, to purchase a chateau near Paris, valued at about a million of francs. His successor is an Andalusian. He wants now to go to join the Spanish squadron, which it is apprehended will, should Bismarck not recede, receive orders to defend Cadiz from bombardment. Naturally the Queen Mother is greatly distressed the idea of the management of her househol passing into other hands. At her time of lif new faces are distasteful, and an elderly lady —albeit with an ever youthful heart—canno change her personal attendants as she woul her gloves.

WILL HAVE HIS DRINK.

The Philosophy of a Georgia Man Who Knew Human Nature.

From the Atlanta Constitution.

Two tipplers of the moonshiner variety sat on the Custom House steps gazing gloomily at the State House. One was an old man with a shaggy, gray beard, and the other was a young fellow with tangled yellow locks and whiskers.

"I say, Unk Hank," said the young man, "reckon them fellers over thar kin stop folks drinkin' uv ther drams?"

"Naw."

"I say, Unk Hank."

"I hears yer, Jim."

"S'posen they makes it a chain-gang case ter drink drams?"

"Won't be wuth a shuck."

"Well, Unk Hank, s'posen they make it penitentiary fur life?"

"No good, I tell yer, Jim."

Jim paused a moment and then in a solemn tone said:

"Unk Hank, s'posen drinkin's made a hangin' uffense?"

"Oh, hush yer mouth, Jim. Hangin' ain't gwine ter stop drinkin'."

"But, Unk Hank, s'posen they pisens the liquor?"

The old man looked down sternly upon the questioner and gritting his teeth, he growled out:

"'Pears ter me, Jim, you've done lost all yer sense. Ef a man wants his dram he's a-gwine ter hev it, spite er chain-gang, penitensh, hangin' an' pizen. None er that biggerty talk would skeer me. Them legister folks may law an' law an' law as much as they please, but men'll drink their drams long as they are topside the airth. Them's my principools, Jim."

Detroit Women Light Fingere

From the Detroit Free Press.

"That's the tenth one this afternoon," a Woodward avenue floor-walker the other as a woman hurriedly passed out."

"What—tenth woman?"

"No; tenth portmonnaie."

"What do you mean?"

"Well, this house bought a job lot of portmonnaies last spring, and we got 'em so cheap that we could almost give them away. A few days ago I took it into my head to see how many of our customers were honest, and I stuffed a portmonnaie with paper and left it on the silk counter. It was slyly pocketed by the very first lady who discovered it and she is the wife of a man worth $50,000."

"And the next?"

"Well, we lose an average of twenty portmonnaies a day. That means we have twenty ladies come in here who are thieves, for it is theft to gobble up lost or mislaid property without saying anything about it?"

"It must be interesting to watch them."

"It is. Now and then a woman will observe the article and hand it over to the clerk, but that is an exception. I have seen a woman work for a quarter of an hour to get the portmonnaie into her pocket or shopping-bag. But that isn't where the fun comes in."

"Where is it?"

"Why, on a slip of paper stuffed into the little wallet I write: 'Stolen from the counter of —— & Co.' At least half the wallets are returned. There comes a lady now."

She was a well-dressed and respectable looking lady. She had a portmonnaie in her hand and a smile on her face, and as she came near she sweetly said:

"Beg pardon, but in trading here this morning I accidentally picked up this purse in some way. I presume it contains money. I have not even opened it. Please tell the loser that it was all a mistake, and I am sorry if I have put her to trouble."

"Very well ma'am."

"That was well, done," said the reporter.

"Yes, fairly well, but it's the story all tell. She opened the portmonnaie, saw put-up job and tried to play off innocenc returning it. We are all honest, you k but nevertheless a lost wallet will tempt man nature sooner than any other bait I k of."

Spoiled his Fun.

From the Chicago Herald.

"Well, Johnny, my little man," said the day-school teacher, as he took a small bo his lap in a crowded car, "did you have a time at the picnic?"

"Naw," replied Johnny with a look of dis mingling with the pie-stains upon his inno face.

"Did some one act rudely to you?" inquire teacher "or were you sad because your little sick sister had to stay at home?"

"Naw," Johnny replied again; "didn't no fun at all. Me an' Tommy Jones cli inter a tree an' cut the rope of a swing Wilson an' his girl would flop inter the but Bill go onto us in time to save h That spoiled the hull proceedin's fer Nevy had no kind of luck at all at the nic."

HUNTING HOSTILES.

Federal Troops Pursuing Thievish Piegan and Apache Indians.

OMAHA, September 30.—Official information has been received at military headquarters that 200 Piegan Indians have left their reservation in the far Northwest and are now on a thieving expedition in Southern Montana, about 200 miles from old Ft. Smith. They have been restless for some time. It is undecided at military headquarters as to whether any troops from this department ought to be sent to the scene of the trouble or not, but if it became necessary, troops will be ordered out from Ft. McKinney; otherwise the Department of Dakota, in which the Piegans belong, will be allowed to drive the redskins back.

An Engagement With Apaches.

TUCSON, ARIZ., September 30.—Advices from 'uachuca say that a courier arrived from Major avis' command with intelligence that on the 22d instant he had a fight with the Apaches, killing one hostile and wounding several. It is believed that fully sixty hostiles were engaged. His command lost one scout, killed. The Indians retreated into the mountains. Davis followed early the next morning and was joined by Crawford and the scouts.

The Court of Correction.

Judge Noonan to-day opened the examination of Robert P. Scott and James C. Maguire, charged with embezzling about $5,000 from the Snapleigh-Cant-ell Hardware Co. There is a difference of opinion as to whether the case is one of embezzlement or larceny, and Judge Noonan will decide the point on the afternoon of the 13th prox.

Louis Kircher, for imposing on Francis Whittaker & Sons a check for $60 on the defunct Tenth Ward Savings Bank, was held to the Grand Jury on a charge of fraud.

The case of John Mitchell was taken under advisement. Mitchell is charged with abandonment for failing to pay alimony to his divorced wife for the support of their three children.

The case of Henrietta Kinzle and John H. Ahrens, charged with manslaughter in the fourth degree, in producing the death of Annie Daubach at 604 Gratiot street, was taken under advisement on the evidence produced before the Coroner.

ART IN DECORATION.

Leather splashers for washstands are novelties.

Fans of a large and original shape are very pretty placed over doors.

Chintz pattern, or all-over decorated ware, is quite popular for toilet sets.

Steel baskets, suspended by chains, add much to the attraction of richly appointed fireplaces.

Long, narrow, upper-colored lights of stained glass constitute a charmed addition to rich patterned portieres.

ichly carved oak chests, with massive ught metal hinges, are included among the ssary hall furnishings.

he richer table scarfs employ all sorts of utiful silken fabrics; gold couching and apues seem to be the leading favorites in oration.

n old picture frame may be brought into vice by covering it with velveteen of any h shade, with a mat of Madras drawn full r pasteboard.

mitation tapestries are now so admirably ecuted that they may be made to serve the rpose of interior decoration for many parts the house.

A fine sconce mirror is oval in shape and ng by brazen chains issuing from brazen n heads. Its thick beveled glass is framed heavy open-work brass.

Window drapery should be of soft light maial, something that will hang in graceful ds; the rod should be of polished brass or ndsome surfaced light wood.

MONEY.

NEW YORK, September 30.—The stock market has been unusually dull during the past hour and the fluctuations have all been within very narrow limits. At the opening prices were about steady, although New York Central and St. Paul were ⅛ lower and Pacific Mail ¼ higher. There was considerable irregularity in the early dealings, Jersey Central, New York Central and Louisville and Nashville being weak, while others advanced ⅛ to ¼ per cent, and Lackawanna ⅛ per cent. Before the end of the first hour the slight gains were checked and there was a decline to, or below, opening figure. In the hour New York Central fell 1 per cent. At 11 o'clock the market is dull and steady, except New York Central, which is still weak.

NEW YORK, September 30—NOON.—Money easy at one per cent. Bar silver 103¼. The stock market has been extremely dull during the past hour, but has shown steady strength throughout, the advances ranging from ⅛ to ½ per cent. Lake Shore was most prominent in activity and strength. At noon the market is dull and strong at the best prices of the morning. Threes, 103½; 4½s, 112½; 4s, 123½; Pacific 6s of '95, 123.

NEW YORK, September 30, 3 P. M.—The stock market was more active this afternoon and generally strong and closed strong at about the best prices of the day.

BOSTON, September 30.—Mexican 7s 40¾, scrip 88¼; common 8¼.

BOTHERED BULLS.

Theories Won't Hold and Wheat Weak—The Bears on Top of the Market.

Special by Telegraph from Pickering & Co., Chicago, to the POST-DISPATCH.

CHICAGO, September 30.—Wheat has been weaker to-day under the influence of dull, and in some instances lower cables, fine weather and liberal receipts. The demand from the country was smaller than for some days and home traders had the market all to themselves. Some features of foreign news were discouraging to holders, especially the fact that English supplies are constantly running ahead of their consumption, thus upsetting the theory of the bulls that England will soon have to buy freely to maintain her stock. Our receipts continue large, 406,000 bushels arriving to-day at Western points, and only a small export business doing. The market rallied from lowest point on good buying by shorts and the price did not again break, but ruled steady and firm, and finally closing at about the highest price of the day.

Oats were easier, with a small business. Receipts were too large for the trade.

Corn was weak and lower, mainly on a pressure to sell September and cash corn. The premium for cash soon disappeared and it sold at October price all day. Good crop reports and large receipts made the long futures weak, and the market fell off a half cent all round. The shipping demand was light and our stock is rapidly gaining, so that it is generally expected that October corn will be delivered to-morrow. The market closed dull. For to-morrow receipts are expected to include 150 cars wheat, 400 cars corn and 210 cars oats.

Provisions were weaker and dull.

Commercial Notes.

The Mark Lane Express publishes an estimate of this year's crops. The final conclusion is more favorable than the earlier reckonings were, and shows the wheat crop to be above the average in all parts of Great Britain, while the crop of oats is under the average. The estimated yield of wheat is thirty bushels to the acre. On this reckoning, the wheat crop of Great Britain will amount to over 72,000,000 bushels, of which 8,000,000 bushels will be required for seed, leaving more than 64,000,000 bushels for sale. Taking the present average value of wheat to be 33 shillings, the total value of the wheat crop is about $70,000,000. There has been a considerable decrease in the number of acres sown, and the decrease in production has been simultaneous with a great increase in the number of cattle, showing that much of the former wheat acreage has been used as pasture.—Placing the consumptive requirements of the United Kingdom at 210,000,000 to 220,000,000 bushels, they will require for the present season (after deducting the 64,000,000 bushels of the Mark Lane Express estimate) 146,000,000 to 156,000,000 bushels.—The stock of wheat in this market is beginning to run down, decreasing 84,000 bushels in the past twenty-four hours. Since the stock reached its largest quantity, about seven weeks ago, it has decreased 129,000 bushels, No. 2 red falling off 141,000 bushels.—What the deliveries of wheat would be on October contracts to-morrow was a puzzle to the trade. Some thought they would be large, others were confident they would be small; some that all that was short would be delivered, others, that not all of it would be. That all the wheat delivered would go into carriers' hands was of course conceded by all. There is and has been too much difference between October and November for the moneyed men not to take hold. As a leading trader said, "As long as the bulls are fools enough to pay men who carry this wheat 40 per cent on their investment, so long will it be carried." There is not much probability of any wheat coming upon the market for sale to-morrow. It will all be carried against November sales.—Imports into the the United Kingdom last week of flour and wheat were equal, 2,804,000 bushels, which was 213,000 bushels larger than the preceding week and 1,430,000 bushels smaller than corresponding week last year.—Adding the week's imports of wheat and flour to the farmers' deliveries of wheat in the United Kingdom for same time, the combined amount exceeded their consumptive requirements by 114,000 bushels.—The Bulletin des Halles estimates the wheat crop of France in 1885 at 288,706,500 bushels, against 324,187,518 bushels in 1884, being a decrease of 35,421,018 bushels. It estimates the wheat crop of the world in 1885 at 1,926,860,100 bushels, against an average crop of 2,079,260,700 bushels, being a deficiency of 152,400,800 bushels. It estimates the necessary importations of the importing countries at 279,684,900 bushels, and the possible export surplus of the exporting countries at 224,202,000 bushels, indicating a deficiency in the world's supply of 55,482,900 bushels.—Among the illustrious members of the Exchange who returned home this morning were Col. Will H. Barnett and Maj. H. Rasin. Now let the Veiled Prophets' procession proceed.—It was stated by a generally well informed party here that some of the banks were calling in loans on wheat, as the demand for cotton money was extremely heavy.—That alleged squeeze in September oats did not squeeze to any alarming extent. It is probable that the cash No. 2 oats sold to the shorts yesterday proved too much for the longs, and would be squeezers, and they made no attempt to run the market up to-day. But September rye shorts will probably dance to bull music. It seems that R. S. McCormick & Co. bought some No. 2 rye for this month's delivery, and believing it would be actually delivered them, they sold it East and contracted freight room for the entire amount. The No. 2 rye, however, received by these shorts they sold on the open market as it came in, and made no attempt to fill their contracts. This "roiled" the longs, and to-day Pete McMorrow bid cash No. 2 up to 65c, and will demand a settlement at that rate. It looks very much as though McCormick & Co. can make the shorts pay the difference, too.—A late cable stated that the English markets were declining on large offerings of Russian and Indian wheat at lower prices.—Chicago reported 170,000 bu spring wheat as taken there for direct export to Europe.

St. Louis Markets.

FORENOON SESSION, CLOSING 1 P. M.

Wheat—Changing over from one month to another made trading much livelier in options this morning. There was a large amount of October sold out, principally for country account, and November and other deferred options bought in its place. Outside of this swapping process trading was in a scalping way, not many orders coming from the outsiders. A lower level was reached by prices early in the day, and weakness was then generally prevalent; this in sympathy with easier markets at all other points. Cable news were dull, but unchanged, both public and private cables reporting this, though some "grapevine" dispatches said English markets market had fallen through. Sales were at 24½ regular, 24½ spot, 25½ in St. L., 25½ in M.; rejected at 23½ in M.

Rye—Grade No. 2 sold up 8c, from 57 to 65, the September longs bidding the market up that high, as the shorts had defaulted on their contracts. For rejected this side 52 was bid.

Barley steady with a good demand for choice. Prices range as follows for Nebraska and Iowa (little Wisconsin and no Minnesota arriving): Rejected 40@45; No. 3 50@55; prime 60@65; choice 70@80; fancy 85@90, outside for Iowa.

Flour—If anything, the market was easier to-day and a general weak feeling was developed. There was less demand and light trading, and holders found that in order to induce trading they would have to shade prices a little, which many of them were unwilling to do, the result being a small business: xx $3 20@3 35; xxx $3 55@3 40; family $3 55@3 65; choice $3 90@4 00; fancy $4 35@4 45; extra do. including favorite brands, $4 70@4 85; patent $5@5 35. These prices are for lots on arrival at depot and lower order lots higher.

Cornmeal—Quiet at $1 90@1 95 city on orders delivered; pearl meal and grits nominal at $2 75@3 00.

Rye Flour—Unchanged at $3 65@3 75.

Bran firm. Sacked sold f. o. b. E. track at 70@71, bulk at 69 E track, 61½ this side.

Hay steady and sound grades in demand. Quotations are as follows: This side—Prairie $7@8 50; mixed $8@10 50; timothy $10 to $12 50 for prime to fancy; East track stock sells about 50c per ton below above rates.

Provisions were firm and there was a good inquiry for pork and bacon. Dry salt meats were dull, with sellers asking f. o. b. on cash orders—3.40 for shoulders, 5.40 for longs, 5.60 for c'ribs and 5.80 for shorts. Some choice winter c'ribs—already here—sold "account whom may concern" at 5.45, freight 8c to East St. Louis, and this was a full price; indeed the same meat at up country point could not have been sold at over 5⅛c freight here. Standard mess pork sold at $8 90 and included in the transactions was one lot of 250 brls. Current make steam sold at 6.05. Packed bacon longs sold at 5.85@6, c'ribs at 6.10 and shorts at 6.30@6.40, latter for next week's delivery. Country bacon, sides 5½@6; shoulders 3¾@3¾; hams 6½@7½. Country lard 5½@6 in irregular pkgs. City hams 10@11½. Breakfast bacon 8@10. Beef—Family $10@13 ₩ brl, according to brand; on orders, higher, $6@7 per ½-brl; dried $11@13; selected $15; smoked tongues $5@5 50 per doz. Tallow—Strictly prime, in oil barrels, 5½; No. 2 5; choice in irregular packages 5¼; No. 2 4¾; tallow grease 4@4½. Grease—Brown and yellow 3@4¼; white 4¼@4¾. Salt—Domestic $1 05@1 10 per brl, as in size of lot; ground alum $1 10 per sack—small way higher.

Cotton.

A good brisk demand marked the local spot trade and the aggregate movement amounted to over 1,400, the heaviest sales so far this season. This good demand and the generally favorable tenor of advices advanced prices here ⅛c all round. Receipts were also largely increased, and taking altogether the market was most satisfactory. Other spot markets were steady and unchanged, but Liverpool reported a good business at hardening rates. Speculation trading was fairly active at all points, but the temper the New York market was unsettled, and during the day prices worked off a little from the opening, but before the close values again advanced and the late months were higher than they opened. The actual close, however, was a great shock to the bulls, prices making from 5 to 6 points and the market closing weak. New Orleans was generally, and Liverpool quiet at an advance.

of the best days of the week for business, and where a good demand is expected and supplies plentiful for all requirements. As far as the first was concerned it was satisfactory, but in the latter respect it was a disappointment, the offerings all told, and including stock left over from the day before, not amounting to forty cars, among which were several loads of fat cattle. The early local demand was quite good, and the dressed beef people exhibited some little urgency, and both they and local dealers paid stronger prices than could have been obtained had the supply proved larger. Some natives were taken by the first-named buyers at $4 50, and one or two loads of Colorados at $4 17½, other transfers being in Indian cattle at $3 15@3 30 to both classes of buyers. Eastern buyers were present, but they showed little disposition to buy, though there were several loads of good fat native and Colorado steers on the market, and it was said, owing to a lack of demand, they would be shipped elsewhere. We quote:

RULING QUOTATIONS—Exporters $5 35@5 60; for good to heavy steers $5 00@5 30; light to fair steers $4 50@4 85; common to medium native steers $4 00@4 40; Southwest steers $3 50@4 50; grass Texans $2 65@3 60; native cows and heifers, common to choice, $2 25@3 50; scalawags of any kind $1 40@2 75; milch cows and calves $15 00@40 00; veal calves $5 00@7 50.

HOGS—The market was but well supplied, but under a vigorous demand from all classes the supply was soon closed out and at stronger prices. Shipping orders were quite plentiful and the competition was so great during the fore part of the day that holders found no trouble in getting an advance, the extreme range paid being from $4 00@4 17½, york hogs proper bringing $4@4 10 and Baltimore weights $4 15@4 17½. City butchers bought quite freely, and paid from $4 10@4 20, while rough mixed to good heavies sold in a small way to local packers and speculators at a range from $3 80 to $4. The supply was soon exhausted at these figures, the market closing firm.

Wharf Whisperings.

The Hudson had a big trip from the Tennessee.

The City of New Orleans is due to-night from below.

The Arkansas City left Memphis yesterday at 3 p.m. for Vicksburg.

Notwithstanding the recent rain the river continues to decline slowly.

The Libbie Conger will be the Saturday packet for St. Paul in the Diamond Jo Line.

Capt. Irwin Dugan, Supervising Inspector, will transfer his headquarters to Louisville.

Lightkeepers are inquiring after the whereabouts of the U. S. Lighthouse steamer Lily.

Captain T. Folgee was registered at Hurst's yesterday. He leaves for Burlington to-night.

The City of Vicksburg of the Anchor Line came in fairly laden, and will return to-morrow for Vicksburg at 5 p. m., sharp.

George Derickson and Billy Woods are receiving for the dandy Mary Morton, while Tom Manning is her famous caterer.

The larbord wheel house of the City of Cairo is a little disfigured, but she's still in the ring. She picked up a snag above Cairo.

The Chouteau leaves this 4 p. m. for below, under the Anchor Line auspices. She will remain in the cotton trade all winter.

The flying War Eagle of the Saints' Line will leave for St. Paul on Friday, at 4 p. m., with Captain Tom Davidson in command. She has a handsome trip down.

The appointment of Captain D. R. Asbury to the position of Supervising Inspector of this port was a genuine but very pleasant surprise to the boys of marine following.

The big pusher R. S. Hayes and barges of the St. Louis and Mississippi Valley Transportation Company leaves for New Orleans at 6 p. m., Saturday. James P. Burdeau is her agent.

Captain Ruse W. Dugan and wife arrived in the city this morning. Captain Ruse is always welcomed by a host of friends in this city. His home is at present in Covington, Kentucky.

The high stepping Mary Morton of the Diamond Jo Line did not arrive until this morning, having been delayed by big business and bad weather, and will return at 4 p. m., promptly. Col. I. P. Luske is her gentlemanly agent.

The Paragould enters the Vicksburg and New Orleans trade to-day, to be followed by the Ed Richardson in the Granville and Cairo trade on Saturday, until the appearance of the great J. M. White a little later, when the Richardson will take her old place in the Vicksburg and New Orleans trade.

THE Republican has discovered that St. Louis suffers from discrimination in freights, and it says so this morning. The editor must have been reading over the old files of the POST-DISPATCH.

WE have heard enough about the caucuses and agreements on the offices among the men who have not the disposal of the offices. What we want to hear of is of CLEVELAND holding a caucus with himself and agreeing about the appointments.

WHILE Gen. SHERMAN is trying to make us believe that Editor MCCULLAGH was not a good war correspondent, Editor MCCULLAGH has undertaken to prove that SHERMAN was not a great General. If they succeed, no reputation will hereafter be safe.

WHEN President CLEVELAND read in the papers of the interruption to travel on the Mexican Central Road in consequence of the tremendous rains, he was heard to remark that he would not have been sorry if rains and washouts had interrupted the recent volume of passenger travel between St. Louis and Washington.

IF promised as much time as both the other candidates, FORAKER is willing to crawl out of the brush and meet HOADLY and LEONARD in triangular debate. This neat little arrangement would give three-fourths of the speaking to the Republican assailants of Democracy and leave the champion of the latter only one-fourth of the time to answer both.

IT is not often that a Mayor in a time of riot shows the pluck and devotion of Mayor BEAUGRAND of Montreal. His sublime courage goes far to atone for the blind fury and cowardice of his fellow-townsmen in their warfare against sanitation and common sense. Mayor BEAUGRAND was elected as a representative of the French-Canadian element, but he has shown that he does not represent the ignorance and stupidity of those misguided men who are in the riot.

A MORNING dispatch from Jefferson City says that Consul-General EWING is too sick to go to his post, but that he is not "afraid" to go to Mexico. There is no instance on record of an office seeker being afraid to take an office after it was given him, but really Consul-General EWING is trying the patience of the people too long. If it is of no consequence whether we have a Consul-General in Mexico or not, the office should be abolished. If the office is the important one that we have been led to believe, it ought to be filled at once, and if Mr. EWING is too sick to fill it he should resign and not obstruct the public service.

ST. LOUIS has had three days of damp and threatening weather, but the physical clouds which obscure the face of the sun are veils of thinnest gauze compared to the moral clouds which darken the whole expanse of office-seeking when Attorney-General GARLAND incidentally mentions that the Administration will cling fast to the civil service reform plank, and make no removals in St. Louis except on proof of incompetence or offensive partisanship. Here all slates hinge on the marshalship, and there is no indication that the Administration has had proof of offensive partisanship or incompetence in that office. There is a general impression that when Miss PHOEBE COUZINS visited Washington she built up a solid foundation under the official feet of her father, and that all calculations based on his removal are erroneous.

THE right to bolt is sacred and worthy of a sturdy defense, but not more sacred than the right of the party organ to express its opinion of bolters in general. The right to bolt, therefore, does not carry with it the right to waylay and shoot the organ grinder, and we cannot wholly approve of that Virginia method of asserting the rights of bolters. When Judge GEORGE W. WARD, Prosecuting Attorney and editor of the Abingdon Examiner, expressed the opinion that a candidate before a convention who would bolt its action and run independent "would steal the coppers from a dead nigger's eyes," he did nothing more than express a very common opinion in coarse, but otherwise inoffensive language. When Dr. WHITE, the bolter, and two of his relatives waylaid WARD and fired a dozen shots at him from behind trees and other covers after bringing him to the ground with a double-barreled shotgun, they simply proved themselves capable of committing a more cowardly and brutal crime than stealing from a defunct African.

BEN BUTLER has at last blurted out his real sentiments respecting the laborers of this country. He says they are not intelligent and that "nine out of ten of them would sell their votes for $2 a piece." This is what they get for refusing him their votes a year ago when he was exploiting himself as their champion, their leader and their candidate for President. He says they were afraid of him because he had a little property. But the fact is that they saw through him then as clearly as they do now, when he so frankly confesses his real feelings towards them, and that his sole object then was to get them under the control of "a man with considerable wealth and a family and property interests." They clearly understood that he had devoted his whole public life to the accumulation of great wealth in the service of the money kings and the land grabbers. His whole record in Congress had taught them that he was running, not in the interest of the toiling masses, but in the interest of STEVE ELKINS' candidate and in the interest of that class of political jobbers to which he and STEVE have always belonged. The small vote given to BUTLER and the utter failure of his efforts to elect BLAINE are conclusive proofs that the labor vote is neither so purchasable nor so lacking in intelligence as BUTLER has always believed it to be.

THE METROPOLITAN PRESS.

What the Editors of the New York Journals Are Saying To-Day.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, September 30.—The WORLD says: "The plain fact is that the mugwumps, having no national affiliation with the Democracy and having accomplished their object in Mr. Blaine's defeat, were simply awaiting the State nominations to return to their original affinities and prejudices. If Mr. Flower had been the Democratic nominee, our mugwump friends would have found it impossible to support him, and would have charged that he was chosen for his 'bar'l.' If Edward Cooper had been nominated he would have been objected to as Hubert O. Thompson's machine nominee. The time had come for them to leave their accidental allies and return back home. They returned."

THE SUN.

The Sun says: "We labor always for the supreme Democratic principle that the best government is that which governs best; and our interest in the Democratic party grows out of this principle. Whatever promotes that party we support; whatever injures it we oppose. The Democracy saw fit to elect Mr. Cleveland last year, and as a quarrel between the President and the party which made him would work a serious, though perhaps temporary, injury to the party, we have done our best to prevent such a quarrel and to make the best of the case, not for the sake of Cleveland, but for the sake of the Democracy. There are thousands of Democrats who take this view of the situation and whose efforts, like our own, are constantly devoted to the preservation of peace."

THE TIMES.

The Times says: "The pleasing 'Convention of Laborers' in Washington Territory is a natural sequence of the failure of the Government to bring to justice any one of the murderers of Chinese in Wyoming. The proceedings of the Convention amount to a confession that its members cannot compete with the Chinese in skill and industry. That is a confession which an American is very loth to make, even when it is true. His instinct for equality leads him to concede to everybody else the 'show' which he is not at all backward about demanding. It may be safely said that the laborers who convened at Seattle were not Americans, but representatives of the rif-raf of Europe."

THE TRIBUNE.

The Tribune says: "The communication of J. W. Rogers, attorney for J. H. Rogers of the pan-electric invention, does not help the defense of Mr. Garland. Although Mr. Rogers writes to justify 'a faithful public servant,' he strengthens the case against the Attorney-General immensely by showing, in the first place, that the Attorney-General held half a million more of stock in the telephone companies than any one supposed; that he knew all about the application on the part of the promoters of his own corporations, and that, so soon as the way was open for him to help his company through a corporation in which he held no stock, he did not hesitate a moment to let it be done—for this putting it all on the shoulders of the acting Attorney-General will not do."

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

The Irish Question.

To the Editor of the POST-DISPATCH:

ST. LOUIS, September 30, 1885.

"The open revolt of O'Donnell, McCoan and John O'Connor Power against the dictatorship conferred upon Mr. Parnell by the Home Rule party indicates a more extensive dissatisfaction than has yet found expression in words or acts" etc., etc. The foregoing is an extract from an editorial in your issue of the 28th inst. It is not my business to attempt to post the ever ably edited POST-DISPATCH. But you will pardon me if I remind you of the fact that for some time past, both Coan and Power have been classed among those who are recreants and whose course in the British Parliament left no room to doubt their treachery to the principles of the Irish party and the best interests of Ireland. Neither of the gentlemen referred to stand a ghost of a chance of ever again representing an Irish constituency, hence their complaint against Mr. Parnell's dictatorship. At this time the English Government, realizing that Mr. Parnell has united the Irish people, and that with the bitterness and division in the English parties it will be difficult for them to refuse him Home Rule, employ every element under its control to circulate (especially in America) slanders in the shape of news to try and prove that Ireland is divided, and that she is not entitled to Home Rule. In fine, that she cannot govern herself. This is the old London cry. But London and the world will soon learn that United Ireland led by Parnell is able to win and able to govern herself without the fostering care of Downing street humanitarians. Respectfully,

JOHN S.

IN PERILOUS PLIGHT.

An Insane Woman's Antics on a Roof This Morning.

Intense excitement was caused at 613 South Sixth street at 10 o'clock this morning by the appearance on the roof of the building of an old woman whose actions indicated that she was insane. She rushed wildly to and fro on the edge of the roof, waving her arms aloft in the air, and at times turning to the crowd below and haranguing them in an incoherent manner. She seemed to be perfectly oblivious of danger, while the hundreds of spectators frequently shuddered, as from time to time she recklessly leaned over the edge of the roof, her nerve never deserting her even for a moment. It soon came to be known that the old lady was a Mrs. Annie Krueger, who occupied the third floor of the house, and that she had for some time past been displaying signs of insanity. Several efforts were made to induce her to return to the house, but as they only seemed to increase her excitement and thus add to her peril, they were abandoned and search was made for the police. Officers McDonald and Fox were soon upon the scene, and, having with considerable difficulty, gained admission to the old lady's rooms they gained the roof and reached the old lady who quietly submitted to removal from her hazardous situation, and to the Central Police Station where she was locked up as a preliminary to placing her in the Insane Asylum. The unfortunate old lady was sent to the City Hospital last summer to be treated for sunstroke, and, though she recovered at the time, her mind was slightly affected and the aberration has steadily increased since. She has a son who works in Tony Faust's and who was notified of his mother's predicament but arrived at the scene after she had been rescued.

CHARLES M. ELLEARD'S FUNERAL.

The Elks Will Take Leave of Their Deceased Brother at the Grave.

Charles M. Elleard's remains will be carried to Bellefontaine Cemetery to-morrow, and given a temporary resting place in one of the vaults until the family select a suitable lot in which to finally deposit the remains. The funeral will take place to-morrow from the family residence in Ellerdsville. Religious services will precede the removal to Bellefontaine, Rev. Montgomery Schuyler of Christ's Episcopal Church, reading the prayers for the dead and saying the final words of consolation to those who are left behind. At the close of the ceremonies the Order of Elks will take charge of the funeral. The deceased was one of the oldest members of the Order in St. Louis and was among the most popular men in the local lodge, which will do his memory every possible honor. The Elks selected for pall-bearers are: Dr. J. H. McKellops, Capt. Charles Evans, and Messrs. J. H. Chassing, James McNichol, J. J. Kerns and Lewis A. Clarke. There will be fine floral tributes of an appropriate character furnished by a committee of Elks, consisting of Messrs. W. C. Steigers, C. D. Colman and Fred Schmieding. At the cemetery the beautiful and impressive service of the Elks' order will be read by Mr. John W. Norton, exalted ruler of the St. Louis Lodge. A meeting of Elks will be held at 8 o'clock to-night to take action in regard to Mr. Elleard's death. Every member is earnestly requested to be present, and at 12:30 to-morrow the same full attendance at the lodge-room is desired, when carriages will be in waiting to carry members to Ellerdsville to pay the final tribute to their deceased brother.

DISGUSTED WITH BROWN.

D. P. Rowland Says He Never Applied for the Postmastership.

D. P. Rowland was very much disgusted yesterday when he saw Joe Brown's letter on the Postmastership in the POST-DISPATCH. To a POST-DISPATCH reporter this morning he showed the following telegram:

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 29.
H. T. Massengale, 2815 Locust street;
Rowland's papers not transferred to Post Office Department.
D. MANNING, Secretary.

"I cannot understand how such a story should have gained circulation," said Mr. Rowland. "I have never made any application whatever for the Postmastership. Of course, if it was offered me, I would take it, as who would not, but I have never asked it. I do not see what could have induced Joe Brown, whom I have befriended so often, to write such a letter. You can be sure I will write him a letter to-night that will express my sentiments on the subject pretty clearly."

DIED IN HARNESS.

Postmaster Brown, at Austin, Tex., Drops Dead While Attending to His Duties.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK., September 30.—William S. Brown, Postmaster at Austin, Ark., is dead. He finished making up the mail on Monday, and sat down to rest, when he fell on the floor, dying without a struggle. He was 75 years old. Thos. McRae, the newly elected Congressman from the Third District, was in town yesterday. John H. Rogers, Representative of the Third Arkansas District, left for Fort Smith last night. He had been to Hot Springs trying to learn public sentiment regarding the selection of a Postmaster. A dark horse has been selected for that position.

AN EDITOR'S CATCH.

The Wedding of Mr. Geo. Davis and Miss Mamie Rainey, at Marshall, Mo.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

MARSHALL, MO., September 30.—Mr. Geo. Davis, editor of the Progress, of this city, and one of the most brilliant writers in the State, was quietly married at 10 o'clock this morning to Miss Mamie Rainey, one of the most beautiful and amiable young ladies of this city. The event was an entire surprise to their many friends.

Sons of Veterans.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

JOLIET, ILL., September 30.—The Sons of Veterans instituted Camp No. 38 here last night with flattering prospects for a large and influential body, the members compromising some of Joliet's best young men. The name adopted was "Camp McLaughry," a prominent man in public circles and Warden of the Penitentiary located here. Steps have been taken to secure arms and to uniform those mustered in, and the intention is to make it the leading Camp of the State, both in number and appearance.

Second District Police Court.

There were but seventeen cases on Judge White's docket to-day, and but few fines were imposed. Matelio Long, for peddling without license, was fined $25; Clara Mason, an improper character, $15; Amanda Wright, disturbing the peace, $10; Chas. M. Moore, same offense, $10; two tipsy individuals were assessed $3 each for drunkenness. Chas. Moore, Amanda Wright and Clara Mason were sent to the Work House, and were accompanied by Robert C. Phelan and Edward Phelan, who were before the Court yesterday.

WEDNESDAY'S WEDDINGS

Fashionable Nuptials in St. Louis Society To-Day.

Marriage of Mr. Joseph H. Brook to Miss Annie Woodward and of Mr. J. G. Adderton to Miss Carrie Plant—The Guests, Toilets and Presents.

At 8 o'clock this evening, at Grace Episcopal Church, North St. Louis, Rev. Dr. Ingranam will unite in marriage Miss Annie Woodward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Woodward, and Mr. Joseph H. Brook of the Simmons Hardware Company. The fair young bride has since her childhood been a great favorite in the church, active in the Sunday-school, and a member of the church choir, circumstances which lend more than ordinary interest to this occasion. The church has been beautifully decorated with flowers by the hands of her young companions, and Prof. Ellicock will preside over the organ, playing Mendelssohn's Wedding March as the cortege proceeds up the aisle. The young bride will lean upon the arm of her father, who will give her away, preceded by her mother, who will be supported by the groom. There will be no bridesmaids, but the bride will be attended by her younger sister, Miss Mary Woodward, Miss Bingham of Indianapolis, Miss Jones and Miss Wright of this city. The ushers, wearing Prince Albert coats, with white ties and gloves, will lead the bridal party. They are Messrs. Edgar B. Woodward, the brother of the bride; Will Brooks, the groom's brother; Mr. Thomas H. Hambleton and Mr. Will Armstrong.

The bride will wear a rich robe of pure white ottoman silk, made with long princess train, finished around the bottom with a narrow pleating of the silk, beneath which appears a balyeuse of pleated lace. The tablier is composed of two deep flounces of rich oriental pompadour lace, wrought in an elaborate pattern of roses, with many raised petals and delicate tracery of stems and foliage. On each side there are panels of deep pleatings of the silk with revers of lace to match the flounces. The corsage, cut pointed in front, montant and sleeveless, is closed in front with a jabot of lace, and a fall of the lace meets the long white gloves above the elbow. The full illusion veil will be fastened with pearl pins, and no ornament will be worn except a bunch of Nephitus roses at the throat, and a large loose bunch of the same flowers will be carried in the hand.

Miss Mary Woodward, the sister of the bride, will wear an embroidered mull robe toilet, made simply, with Marguerite skirt and plain round waist, a rich sash of ciel blue satin confining the slender waist, at which a bunch of Marechal Niel roses will be worn, and a large bunch of roses will be carried in the hand.

Miss Bingham of Indianapolis will wear a handsome costume of sea green silk, combined with shell pink, made short, the pleatings lined with pink silk. Over the tablier falls scarf draperies of pink silk and oriental lace, with bouffant draperies at the back; corsage cut square and filled with lace; demi-sleeves of the lace and a cluster of pink ostrich tips complete the toilet. She will carry a bunch of pink roses.

Miss Jones will wear white embroidered mull, made dancing length, with round waist, cut en V and filled with lace demi-sleeves. White silk sash draperies and pure white roses will be worn at the waist.

Miss White will wear a white embroidered robe dress made short, with sash draperies of pink satin, corsage round, and close-fitting to the throat, with lace finish confined by bon silene roses, a large bunch of the same flowers in her hand.

Mrs. Woodward, the bride's mother, will wear a rich toilet of black satin de Lyon en train, with trimmings and draperies of black Chantilly lace, corsage montant, with demi-sleeves and long gloves. Diamonds and a loose bouquet of Marechal Neil roses complete the toilet.

After the ceremony at the church there will be a large reception at the elegant old-fashioned home of the bride's parents, No. 3613 N. Eleventh street, which has been handsomely decorated with flowers. The bridal pair will go at once to their new home at Benton Flats, which has been handsomely fitted up by the relatives of both parties. Among the large number of costly presents received is a Decker grand piano, from the father of the bride; a handsome parlor suit from the father of the groom and an elegant watch from the groom. From her little brother, Louis B. Woodward, a large steel engraving, "The Springtime of Love," and a companion piece, "The Medicine of Love," from her brothers, Walter and Edgar Woodward. From the choir she received a handsome testimonial, and also one from her Sunday-school class. From her numerous friends she has gifts of silverware, brass, china, bisque, bronze, faience, amberine, roses, pictures and stands too numerous to mention.

ADDERTON-PLANT.

This evening at 8 o'clock, Miss Carrie Plant, daughter of Mrs. Olive Plant, will be married to Mr. J. G. Adderton. The ceremony will be performed at the handsome residence of her brother, Mr. G. H. Plant, No. 3537 Washington avenue, which has been beautifully decorated by Jordan for the occasion. Groups of tropical plants in the hall will serve as a screen for Spiering's orchestra. The wedding guests will include only the members of both families, a very few intimate friends and the "Au Fait Club," of which the bridal couple are members. The bride will wear a very elegant dress of duchess satin made with a princess train, finished with a deep pleating of satin around the bottom, the tablier composed of two deep flounces of duchess and point lace combined; a bunch of natural flowers placed midway on the left side of the skirt. The corsage is square cut with deep Valois collar, filled with duchess lace, demi sleeves, met above the elbow by long gants de Swede. The tulle veil will be worn over a coiffure a la pompadour, and fastened with silver pins. Diamonds, the brooch the gift of the groom, will be the only ornaments used.

The attendants will be Miss Nellie Plant, the sister of the bride, and Mr. Will Adderton, the brother of the groom, Miss Bell Rowland, niece of the groom and Mr. Cliff Sanders. Miss Nellie Plant will wear white duchess satin made short, with ruffles of Valencines lace and draperies bouffante at the back, corsage square cut, filled with lace, and bouquet of natural flowers. Miss Belle Rowland will wear a handsome toilet of white China silk, made dancing length, with soft loose draperies combined with lace; corsage square and, sleeveless, with garniture of natural flowers.

Mrs. George Plant, the hostess will wear a rich copper-colored ottoman silk with princess train of copper-colored velvet brocade; corsage en-V filled with duchess lace, diamond ornaments and bouquet du corsage of Marechal Niel roses; hair pompadour without ornaments.

Miss Mattie Plant, daughter of the hostess, white crepe de chien, dancing length, with bouffant draperies at the back and square-cut corsage filled with lace; Bon Silene roses at the waist and carried in her hand.

Little Ally Plant, white embroidered robe, with white sash confining the waist; flowers.

Mrs. Olive Plant, the mother of the bride, will wear black gros grain, with garniture of duchess lace.

Mrs. George Meyer, sister of the bride, will have a toilet of black satin, with par-dessus of Chantilly lace; flowers.

Little Olive Meyer, embroidered muslin, and Carl Meyer, black velvet.

Among the guests will be: Mr. and Mrs. George Plant, Mrs. Olive Plant, Mr. G. J. Plant, Mr. and Mrs. William Plant, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Plant, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Wheat, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Kirkbride, Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Rowland, Mr. George Adderton and Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Francis, relatives of the groom. The ushers will be Mr. Charlie McCormick and Mr. Will Rowland.

Immediately after the reception the bridal pair will go to their new home, No. 14 Theresa avenue, which has been handsomely furnished by their friends and the members of the "Au Fait Club," who have presented beautiful pieces of furniture, silver, pictures and bric a brac. From her mother she received her carpets; her brother, Mr. George Plant, her china ware; her sister, Mrs. Meyer, presented her with solid silver, and from many other friends she received brasses and bronzes and glass and silver, etc.

LEGAL DOINGS.

Complaint of Mailing an Insulting Letter—Matters in Probate.

Suits for the opening of Whittier street from Finney to Lindell avenues were filed this afternoon in the Circuit Court.

The Public Administrator was to-day appointed in charge of the estate of George Hubert and Mathilda Huertgen, minors.

Letters of administration were granted to-day to Peter A. O'Neil, executor of James O'Neil. The estate is valued at $10,000.

A nonsuit was taken to-day in the Probate Court by W. H. H. Russell in the case of his claim against the estate of Frank Shemis.

Letters of administration were granted to-day to Frederick Schmidt, administrator of Adam Herder. The estate is valued at $790.

The Circuit Court has directed the assignee to advertise for bids for the assets of the Allen & Blaisdell Boatbuilding Company.

There was a preliminary hearing this afternoon before United States Commissioner Cullen on a charge preferred against John B. Bonfort of mailing an obscene letter to Joseph Graham. The letter contained insulting words. Bonfort was arrested this morning.

Charles E. Barney and Ed. L. Adreon were called before the bench of the United States Court this morning to account for their absence from jury service yesterday afternoon. Mr. Adreon said that he responded in the afternoon, and Mr. Barney said that the matter had slipped his memory. Both were excused.

KEENE CAUGHT.

The Bogus Advertisement Swindler in the Hands of the Police.

Officers King and Cassing were approached this morning by a young man who said he wanted them to arrest a party who had attempted to swindle him and who was wanted at the Central Station for fraud. The victim pointed the man out and he was arrested and taken to the station, where it was discovered that he was J. H. Keene, the man who advertised for a cashier and obtained $5 from a young man named Hartman on the false representation that he would buy him a ticket with it to take him to New Albany, Ind., where he was to take charge of an imaginary skating rink which Keene said he owned there. The young man, Hartman, has not been seen since he lodged the complaint with the police a few days ago, and they are desirous of his presence to prosecute the swindler. Several other parties are said to have been nipped by Keene, among them two young men named Byars and Bauer.

CALLING IN LOANS.

Banks Accommodating Cotton at the Expense of Wheat.

A Rumor That is Being Used to Bear the Market—Secretary Endicott Not Coming West—Mrs. Grant's Acknowledgment—The Erie Trouble Settled—The Barley Trade—Exchange Notes.

A rumor has been current on the street for several days past that the banks which have been carrying most of the wheat in store for several months intended calling in part of their loans October 1, because of increased demand for money in other quarters. This would be quite a serious calamity. Elevators and private individuals having large quantities of wheat on hand have sold it for November, December, and even further ahead for enough to pay interest and charges, and have borrowed money on the certificates. Should those loans be called in a great deal of wheat would be thrown back into hands not strong enough to hold it, and as a result considerable cash wheat would be thrown upon a market already high, and a break would be the result. Now rumor has it that the cotton men having come into the money market with a big crop to handle and prospects of a prosperous business, are willing to pay a higher rate of interest than the holders of wheat are paying or can afford to pay; hence, banks have notified their customers that loans on wheat cannot be extended beyond October 1.

A POST-DISPATCH reporter who started out to obtain a confirmation of this rumor did not meet with much success. One prominent merchant who is carrying a long line of wheat, and who has borrowed money on most of it, said that he had heard nothing of a demand for money from the banks, and that he expected to carry his wheat right through October without any trouble. Another dealer said he thought there was no foundation for the rumor. Finally an appeal was made to J. C. Nickerson, cashier of the St. Louis National Bank, but that gentleman was as much in ignorance as any one.

"I think," said Mr. Nickerson, "that there is quite enough money here to satisfy all commercial necessities, and I see no reason why the banks should call in their money on wheat. We are carrying a fair line of wheat, but we do no cotton business. The Commercial and the State Savings also do a wheat business, but little in cotton. The Boatmen's and the Third National do a big share of the cotton business, but little in wheat. The business is pretty well divided up, and I do not see why any of the banks that are carrying wheat should call in their loans."

Notwithstanding the denials of the rumor, there are many who believe it, and it is being used as an argument to bear the market. Should it be true, cash wheat may be expected to take a drop October 1.

The following letter was received this morning by President Haarstick of the Exchange:

"War Department, Washington, September 26, 1885.—Dear Sir: Before leaving the city for the East to-day Secretary Endicott directed me to acknowledge your kind invitation to visit St. Louis on the occasion of the annual Fair, which opens October 5, and tendering the courtesies of the Exchange during the visit. The Secretary regrets to say that the rumor that he is to visit the West this fall is not correct. He desires me to say that he would be very glad if he had a vacation to visit your city, and that it would give him great pleasure to accept your hospitalities in that event. He thanks you for the kind invitation and trusts that some day he may have an opportunity of visiting St. Louis. Very truly yours,

"JAY STONE,

The barley trade is a little late this year," said Charles Teichman this morning, "but the prospects are very good. The crop is as large as usual, though it is not in the best condition. All the Northern barley, even the Canadian crop, is stained by rain. Only the Nebraska crop is in good condition, and there is very little of that. For this reason many of the largest brewers are staying out of the market, waiting to see if the later receipts will not be in better condition. After a bit they will have used up their old malt and we shall then have them in the market, too. Yes, the prospects for this year's business are excellent."

"That trouble between the Erie and the Texas roads has been settled satisfactorily," said C. L. Dean, agent of the Great Western Despatch, this morning. "We have found that it was all a mistake. It seems the Texas roads, when they issued their arbitrary book, had not received a copy of the Great Western Despatch's new book of arbitraries, and the Great Western Despatch was omitted. I have been waiting for that book for some time myself."

Some one has evidently made a mistake. But if the Erie people have failed to furnish the Texas roads with their list of arbitraries they have only themselves to blame.

PLEURO-PNEUMONIA.

Report of the Illinois Live Stock Commissioners to Gov. Oglesby.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., September 30.—At a meeting of the Illinois National Board of Live Stock Commissioners to-day they formulated a report to the Governor setting forth the condition of this State with regard to the existence, at this time, of pleuro-pneumonia. The Commission report that the State is free from the disease in the acute form, but that on the farm of John Boyd, near Elmhurst in Dupage County there exists six cows, (Jerseys) which show signs of having had the disease, and are what are known as recovered cases, or cases in the chronic form. These cattle they have had examined not only by Dr. Paaren, the State Veterinarian, but also by Dr. D. E. Salmon, Chief of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry, and acting on his recommendation, the Commission have placed these animals under strict quarantine, and have requested the Chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry to take charge of them, which he has agreed to do, subject to the approval of the Department of Agriculture. Dr. Salmon has also agreed to recommend that all restrictions against Illinois be removed by other States. The Commission state that they feel that these cattle should be killed in order to insure perfect safety.

THE EXPOSITION.

Strangers Flocking to Town and Visiting the Grand Show.

A Fine Attendance Yesterday, Notwithstanding the Unfavorable Weather—Another Great Musical Treat To-Night—Gossip of the Naves.

Strangers are arriving in the city by thousands and already the hotels are resorting to cots and the use of parlors and halls to accommodate the crush of guests. The Exposition gets the visitors almost as soon as they strike the town, and a citizen strolling through the aisles and corridors is surprised to see the numerous unfamiliar faces and unmistakably hay-rick patterned clothes that are to be seen with them this week. Notwithstanding the rain yesterday, the building was pretty well crowded from 8 a. m. until the closing hour at 10:30 p. m. and nearly every person under the roof was a stranger. All present spoke in terms of the highest admiration of the general display and declared that the Exposition of this year was far ahead in every particular of that of last year. Probably 4,000 strangers were in the building last night.

The Music Hall was filled, afternoon and evening, and Director Gilmore, who gives a good programme every day, no matter what the condition of the weather, furnished music that pleased all comers. Every number was enthusiastically applauded and there was demand for more encores than could be supposed. Patriotic music catches the country cousin better than any other, and Mr. Gilmore serves him up to the bucolic taste. The evening audience in the hall filled the house in every part, and, as on previous evening, about two-thirds of the arrivals at 7:30 clung to their seats until 10:15, and got all the music that was played.

In to-night's programme occurs a descriptive fantasie, intended to be illustrative of the Gilmore Band's tour of the world. Mr. Gilmore gives the following description of the music: "Assembly at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory, New York. March down Broadway. Artillery salute going down the harbor. Farewell land. A Bararole at sea. Eight bells (12 o'clock), midnight. A storm. Prayer for deliverance. A beautiful sunshine. England in sight. The chirping of birds. Distant sounds of 'God Save the Queen,' the air of which a familiar American Y. D. makes known his presence, and looks after the interests of the band in all places. Visits to Ireland and Scotland. 'The Harp that Once Through Tara's Halls,' 'The Campbells are Coming,' and 'Auld Lang Syne.' Departure for France. The beginning of trouble. The Bassoons make a sorrowful declamation. The Clarionet. Horn and Baritone all utter their grievances. The Oboe tells a mournful tale. One after another the players unite. The agitation increases and becomes a regular munity. A Fugue. 'The Marseillaise.' The voice of reason is heard at last. Peace and harmony restored. Away by railroad to Belgium. The familiar American always on hand. National Air of Holland. Pastoral [illegible]. A beautiful morning. Sail down the Rhine. The gun at Sunrise. Arrival in Germany. 'Watch on the Rhine.' A noble Southerner puts in a [illegible] reminder. Goodby to Germany. Departure for America. At sea once more. 'Barcarole.' Land in sight. General joy. Prayer of thanks for safe return. A harmonious blending of three airs going on at the same time—'The Star Spangled Banner,' 'Yankee Doodle,' and 'Home, Sweet Home.' Grand Finale."

The programme for this evening's concert which begins at 7:30 o'clock, is as follows.

PART I.

1. Overture—Robespierre ... Litolf
   Introducing the "Marseillaise" in glory and power, the "Marseillaise" in sorrow and mourning, with effects representing the fall of the guillotine, funeral march, etc.

ger Ben Fine of the Lucas Nine cribes Yesterday's Battle in cago—The Athletic Parade— ting Sundries and Gossip.

Mr. Ben J. Fine, the manager of the St. Louis ague team, returned this morning from Chicago, re he went to witness the opening game be- on the New York and Chicago Clubs. In con- sation with a reporter this morning Mr. Fine d: "The odds of the Chicago Club winning the ampionship of the League, in my mind, are ut 100 to 10 in Chicago's favor. I saw the game Chicago yesterday, and there is no doubt in my d that Welch, New York's best pitcher, is badly of form. I understand that Mutrie said he nded pitching Welch in all four games if he ld do so without crippling him, but I don't think will officiate in another game in series. The pitching of McCormick was won- ful, and he and Kelly, the catcher, really won e game. In yesterday's game Welch had no eed at all, and he contented himself with keeping e ball away from the batters as long as he could, t the Chicagos are good waiters, and when the l finally came over the plate they knocked it out the lot. Kelly alone out of five times at the bat de three triples and two singles. All New York w has is a fighting chance, because you know in e-ball sometimes the poorest club will defeat best. In the Buffalo-New York game for ance, the New Yorks only made two hits Conway, and Gerhardt told me himself club was scared to death, and thought Conway ld shut them out entirely. Luckily, however, y won the game on errors. But the reason I say d New York only has a fighting chance is this: Even ew York should win the next three games and series, I am willing to bet dollars to cents that will win more games from New York than cago will lose to Philadelphia in the final series ur games. It is true that Philadelphia played strong games against Chicago, but the ouis Club played very strongly, too, against ago, and we are to-day stronger than er were, and can and will give New York der tussle than we have ever given a club. Mu- f the New Yorks also feels the same way, and o me yesterday that our club was the bugbear New Yorks, and they were more afraid of of Chicago. Both clubs, of course, are onfident, but New York is handicaped in pitchers' box."

n answer to an inquiry as to whether he thought e rumor that St. Louis would do all it could to ave Chicago win and Philadelphia do the same r New York, because of a sectional feeling, Mr. ine said: "I don't think that question as anything to do with it. Our club ould play just as strongly against the icagos if the final series was with that club as against the New Yorks, and I am satisfied phia feels the same way. No; that won't y figure at all."

aking of the crowd he said it certainly was ss than 10,000, and McCormick received an n at the end of each inning. He saw no bet- t all on the game except, perhaps, a few small for cigars or hats, but no money betting. Chicago scored the four runs in the first g he said it seemed as if pandemonium had n lose, so exceedingly enthusiastic was the d.

The Browns Win.

terday's game between the Browns and Met- ans at New York was characterized by ely light batting on both sides, the New making but a single safe hit off Caruthers' . The coming champions won the game in t inning by scoring three runs, while the olitans crossed the plate but once in the fourth.

The fielding on both sides was very sharp, Browns making a single error and the Mets , and for each error a run was scored, the re- of the game being: St. Louis, 3; Mets, 1.

Bad for New York.

he great Chicago-New York series, which will in probability decide the championship of the ague, was begun at Chicago yesterday. Not- hstanding the rainy weather fully 10,000 specta- witnessed the game, and, as the home club , the majority probably went home satisfied. York was determined to take no chances of eat, and presented its strongest battery, Welch Ewing, while McCormick and Kelly occupied points for Chicago. For once, however, the g pitcher of the League proved ineffective at a st critical time, and the heavy batters of the icago Club secured fourteen safe hits, while Mc- rmick's delivery netted the New Yorkers but ven hits. The fielding on both sides was excellent, tside of the batteries but one error being made the game. Chicago scored four runs in the first, o in the fifth and one in the ninth, and New York o in the third and two in the eighth. Battery rors allowed each club to score two unearned s, and the final result was: Chicago 7, New 4.

COLA'S VINDICATION.

His Mother Makes An Explanation of the Boy's Sad Ending.

Mrs. C. H. Stone, the mother of Cola E. Stone, the bicyclist, whose funeral took place on Monday, has written the following as an explanation of the act which wound up her boy's life:

Since my boy has recklessly thrown his character on the mercy of the public, it must not be ignorantly judged without one effort to present it in its true light. He has been called odd and peculiar—perhaps a dispassionate view of his character may easily explain this. He was a boy of strong opinions, and of great faith in their correctness. This, added to an extremely reticent disposition that made him resent any interference with his mental privacy, made it always difficult to reason with him, but it must be said that, whenever it was possible to so present a point that he could appreciate its justness, he gave up even his dearest wishes.

Then it was a matter of principle with him that each individual had a right to decide for himself in all the details of life—a serious error of judgment, but at least he always bore its consequences manfully. No one of his associates imagined that this sturdy, headstrong boy ever quailed under the criticism freely lavished on his peculiarities in dress and manner, or cared that it shut him out from many enjoyments; but he did, still would not yield because to him it was the right way.

These peculiarities, his blunt manner and a determination that possibly was not always just, made it impossible to appreciate him without long acquaintance, and always obscured traits of character that were fine and grand.

This lack of appreciation stung him constantly; still it is doubtful if his nearest young acquaintances ever understood his exquisite sensitiveness in this respect, so jealously did he keep it from the world.

He had a Spartan-like contempt for suffering, or any yielding to it, a determination to be first or nothing in any undertaking, an unswerving devotion to his friends, to which the intimates of his boyhood can bear faithful witness. To this we must add a perfect contempt for a disposition to criticize adversely. "You have no right to think unkindly of a person's motives, much less to speak so," he has often said, and if such a thing was persisted in, he always made it a point to quietly leave the room.

The fatal lack in his character was want of judgment in estimating rightly the value of life's issues. He had not even fear of anything to guide him. Forms and ceremonies, so often useful in biasing a decision, were absolutely valueless to him, and he had not the experience to go with this characteristic.

If one studies such a character, it is readily seen that many issues would come up which he would find it hard to settle satisfactorily.

For two years I have felt that he was finding life a complex problem. His pride in his great strength (which was not all it seemed) led him to continuous daring feats, which gradually undermined his constitution until at last there were times when he felt that he could not realize the expectations of his friends who took such pride in him. They could never know how keen a pang this was to him. Twice he has said sadly: "They expect so much of me, I am afraid they will have to be disappointed sometime."

Then he failed. He, to whom failure was death! His very nature made it impossible for him to confide to any one how serious his condition was. His club had made expensive preparations, expecting him to help them through, and he could not. Criticism the severest had been heaped upon one of the most generous natures that ever existed. And work and business complications crowded constantly. Then, as we have learned since, he began to think that his hand would be crippled for life, and to come suddenly down from what, to him, of course, was a hard-earned and beautiful prominence must have been a dreadful blow. The one means of working off these troubles, exercise on his loved machine, was denied him, and so he must have come, little by little, to his fatal determination. If there were other troubles, they merely helped.

The devotion that, to save his parents, could enable him to disguise his condition, and for the last five hours to patiently accept all ministrations and make no sign, by even moan or glance of the eye, that he knew he was traveling, all alone, the terrible, sad road, should exempt him from all further criticism. He gave his young life to obtain rest. Cannot it be granted him here as well as hereafter?

CHILD SLAYERS ON TRIAL.

A Black Fiend Foiled—Childish Depravity—Missouri Matters.

MOBERLY, September 30.—The trial of the Griffins for the murder of their adopted boy, Eddie Bollinger, engages attention here and the court room is crowded. The body of the child was found in a reservoir. Griffin testified that one Sunday he spanked the child. When he returned home that night his wife told him that the child was dead. D. Dyer is on trial for the murder of Thos. Carroll, a little boy. Dyer was in a house of ill-repute when the boy, with other lads, came around the premises and were ordered away by the landlady. Dyer picked up a revolver and fired at the lads, the bullet striking Carroll in the head.

MARYVILLE, September 30.—The Sheriff has received information that Frank M. Oliphant, the stockman who committed forgery in this district, has been arrested at Hunnewell, Kan. A little girl, 12 years of age, recently gave birth to a child and accused her brother of being the father. A widow lady has taken charge of the girl.

CHARLESTON, September 30.—A colored man broke into the residence of Mrs. Glaze, a widow, and attempted to criminally assault her and her daughter. The girl made a desperate fight and was badly beaten about the face and limbs. The Sheriff and posse are in pursuit of the brute.

ST. JOSEPH, September 30.—Sam Jones, the evangelist, and Samuel Small, the Atlanta newspaper man, addressed large congregations yesterday. The evangelist severely excoriated church members who work for the devil.

KANSAS CITY, September 30.—William Kupper, a real estate man from Ellsworth, imbibed considerably yesterday and went out driving. Getting out of the hack he fell on the car track and was killed.

SLATER, September 30.—The Presbytery of the Central Presbyterian Church, investigating the charges of un-Christian conduct against W. D. Mahan of Boonville, assessed the punishment at twelve months' dismissal from the ministry.

MARBLE HILL, September 30.—The Killian murder trial resulted in a verdict of manslaughter, and Killian was sentenced to three years in the Penitentiary.

HANNIBAL, September 30.—W. H. Fisher was fined $50 yesterday for leasing his property for purposes of prostitution. Several similar prosecutions are to follow.

SPRINGFIELD, September 30.—Deputy Sheriff Kissee shot and killed Henry Mercer, who was resisting arrest in Taney County. Mercer had disturbed a religious meeting.

FULTON, September 30.—Thomas Garwood, son of a well-known farmer, attempted suicide yesterday by cutting his throat with a pen-knife.

SALEM, September 30.—The residence of Dr. A. H. Love was destroyed by fire last night. The family were absent at the time.

BAY STATE GREENBACKERS.

A Slim Attended Convention Nominates a State Ticket.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

BOSTON, September 30.—The State Convention of the National Party—all that is left in this State of Butler's once grand combination—was held here yesterday. It was an affair of little interest and less significance. About fifty men answered to the call, which was addressed to "all who indorse the platform of the National Greenback Labor Party, adopted at Indianapolis, Ind., May 29, 1885." Among these were very few well known agitators or local politicians. The usual convention machinery was set up, a platform adopted and a ticket nominated, but the working of the machinery attracted less attention than the speeches. These were the feature of the convention, still they lacked the old time fire: Prof. J. H. W. Toohey, the temporary chairman, criticised President Cleveland for appointing Secretary Manning in the interest of the capitalists of New York. James Winston attacked the national bank system and said that when the idea gets firmly fixed in the minds of the people that the government itself must issue the money without any interference on the part of the banks, then let the bank system beware. Charles McLean said he was a repudiationist, taught in that school by the government, which had repudiated its honest contract with the soldier. He characterized President Cleveland as a wooden-headed Daniel Manning's man Friday in the White House. John Johnson, of Greenfield, the permanent president, urged the necessity of a national party and a national currency. Dr. George Duttoa argued on the old line of labor as the only standard of value. The Rev. J. M. L. Babcock talked on the silver question. A. M. Woodman, of Newton, proposed a petition to Congress protesting against the further issue of Government bonds or other Government securities non-taxable for the payment of the war debt, and asking for a constitutional amendment providing that hereafter all moneys appropriated for naval, military, or war purposes shall be a direct tax on all kinds of wealth. The platform committee REPORTED A STRING OF RESOLUTIONS.

These adopt the principles of the Indianapolis Convention of 1884; declare that the financial question is a permanent one and should be settled in accordance with the constitutional provisions which place the exclusive power on the coinage and issue of money with Congress, and all action transferring this power to persons or corporations should be condemned and speedily revoked; denounce the redemption of legal tenders of small denominations as a vicious attempt to annoy the people and disturb business; favor frequent elections and rotation in office; condemn the attempt to create an aristocracy of office-holders under the pretense of civil service reform; condemn long sessions of the Legislature and demand that all disputes between employer and employe shall be settled by arbitration; that better legal protection shall be provided to employes against accident while their movements are under the direction of their employers; that the labor of convicts shall be so employed as to interfere as little as possible with the interests of wage workers and manufacturers; that only through united political action can the rights of labor be asserted and the inequality and injustice from which labor suffers be removed; that property qualifications be removed from the voter, and that the secret ballot law be re-enacted.

The State ticket was nominated with some difficulty, candidates being coy. James Sumner of Litton was unanimously re-elected to head it as candidate for Governor. James M. Buffum of Lynn was nominated for Lieutenant-Governor after two others had declined, and the ticket, after several other declinations, was filled out with H. W. Keastman of Lawrence for Secretary of State, W. Harmes of Boston for Treasurer, A. H. Wood of Lerenberg for Auditor, and A. F. Hall of Hudson for Attorney-General. The State Committee was empowered to make up county, senatorial and councillor tickets.

CRAZED BY DISAPPOINTMENT.

A Young English Sculptor and his Bust of General Grant.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

LANCASTER, PA., September 30.—Yesterday a dispatch from Reading stated that Arthur Cleveland, a young English sculptor, had become crazed at disappointment at not receiving sufficient recognition for a bust of Grant which he had exhibited at the county fair and that he had been placed in a mad house, but escaped, and was last seen coming in the direction of Lancaster. A man 25 years old was brought to the Lancaster County Prison on Sunday under the name of William Johnson, charged with having stolen a coat at Ephrata, this county. Monday he attempted to hang himself but the cord broke, whereupon, he put his head in a bucket of water and when unconsciousness came, fell over on the floor, upsetting the bucket of water, which, running from his cell, attracted the attention of the prison officials and his life was saved. Yesterday he was rational, and to your correspondent said that his name was neither Cleveland nor Johnson, but Arthur Conovar Craven. He was born in Leeds, England. His brother, H. T. Craven, also a sculptor, living at Vineland, N. J., has been written to, and it is thought his difficulties will be amicably settled.

——IT is impossible in the limits of our advertisement to even note the wonderful aggregation of exquisite wares specially designed for bridal gifts that can be found at the Mermod & Jaccard Jewelery Co., Fourth and Locust streets, and even more surprising are the low prices at which are sold lovely solid silver and silver-plated wares, the fine potteries, brass goods, clocks and bisque figures. If you desire to purchase a bridal present, you should surely select from this stock.

A BOY STAGE ROBBER.

The Nocturnal Outrages—An Impromptu Street Duel—Texas Topics.

BROWNWOOD, September 30.—The Cisco stage was robbed by a lad of 19 yesterday. He rifled the registered letters and exchanged horses with the driver. The passengers were unmolested.

AUSTIN, September 30.—The detectives employed by the Council to investigate the recent outrages have obtained evidence to the effect that a conversation was overheard in which the murder of Grace Vance was deliberately planned.

BRENHAM, September 30.—It is reported that Dr. Watts and James H. Holt had an impromptu duel on the streets in Burton last night. Holt was seriously wounded. The trouble was caused by a business dispute. The dengue fever has broken out here and at Palestine. Several cases of sickness are reported in families throughout the city.

SAN ANTONIO, September 30.—It is said that unless the discharged engineers on the Southern Pacific Road are reinstated a general strike will follow on the 30th of October. Ross Kennedy, the cattleman convicted and sentenced to two years for cattle-theft, obtained a new trial yesterday.

ABILENE, September 30.—The result of the conference with the Board of Animal Industry and the State Cattle Association on the location of the fever line in Texas is not yet definitely known. It will be south of the Texas Pacific in Western Texas.

VISITORS should not fail to see the Budweiser display, at Sixth and Locust; first-class restaurant, etc., attached.

SKIN AND BLOOD

Diseases from Pimples to Scrofula Cured by Cuticura.

Hundreds of letters in our possession, copies of which may be had by return of mail, repeat this story: I have been a terrible sufferer for years from diseases of the Skin and Blood; have been obliged to shun public places by reason of my disfiguring humors; have had the best physicians; have spent hundreds of dollars, and got no relief until I used the CUTICURA REMEDIES, which have cured me and left my skin and blood as pure as a child's.

COVERED WITH SALT RHEUM.

CUTICURA REMEDIES are the greatest medicines on earth. Had the worst case of Salt Rheum in this country. My mother had it twenty years, and in fact died from it. I believe CUTICURA would have saved her life. My arms, breast and head were covered for three years, which nothing relieved or cured until I used the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, internally, and CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP, externally.
Newark, Ohio. J. W. ADAMS.

HEAD, FACE AND BODY RAW.

I commenced to use your CUTICURA REMEDIES last July. My head and face and some parts of my body were almost raw. My head was covered with scabs and sores, and my suffering was fearful. I had tried everything I had heard of in the East and West. My case was considered a very bad one. I have now not a particle of Skin Humor about me, and my case is considered wonderful.
Decatur, Mich. MRS. S. E. WHIPPLE.

ECZEMA FROM HEAD TO FEET.

Charles Eayre Hinkle, Jersey City Heights, N. J., writes: "My son, a lad of 12 years, was completely cured of a terrible case of Eczema by the CUTICURA REMEDIES. From the top of his head to the soles of his feet was one mass of scabs." Every other remedy and physicians had been tried in vain.

CUTICURA REMEDIES

Are sold everywhere. Price: CUTICURA, 50c; RESOLVENT, $1; SOAP, 25c. Prepared by the POTTER DRUG & CHEMICAL CO., Boston, Mass.

Send for "How to Cure Skin Diseases."

GRUBS, Pimples, Skin Blemishes and Baby Humors cured by CUTICURA SOAP.

CUTICURA ANTI-PAIN PLASTER is a new, original, elegant and infallible antidote to Pain and Inflammation, banishing Rheumatism, Neuralgic, Sciatic, Sudden, Sharp and Nervous Pains as by magic. At druggists. 25c.

SUMMER! AT THE SEASHORE.

Correspondence of the POST-DISPATCH.

YORK, September 19.—The lower Jersey to the generations preceding the present was n only as a bleak and inhospitable waste of separated for much of its length by shallow and marshes from the mainland; a paradise nners and fishermen who were willing to the tedious journeys necessary to reach it, ome especial haunt of a class of gentry who ed chiefly on the spoils of the sea and who e averse, it was hinted, when deprived of hary the remorseless ocean in the natural of events, to lure their prey by such devices ding a pony with a lantern slung around his up and down the beach on stormy nights, ng unsuspecting mariners think it the friendly of some passing vessel and dash upon it to death. But advancing civilization has nged all this. The wreckers have disappeared only their ghosts haunt the lower beaches, and exploits are recalled in certain dingy little oms in Absecom, Tuckerton, Barnegat and while their descendants are engaged in g the pocket-books of summer visitors ng sail-boats in the bays, pursuing the wily picking cranberries and driving hacks along ch roads.

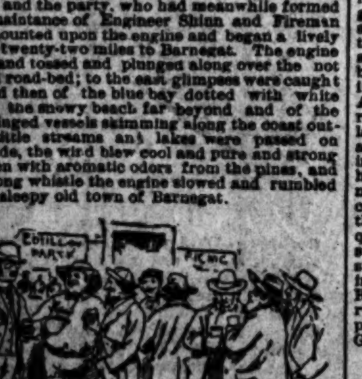
day has dawned upon the lower Jersey it has become popular and fashionable, a d attributes and many of its quaint charms are assing away.

as on a recent crisp, clear day—a day that ed autumn and the waning year—that two of the WORLD staff left the metropolis ng trip along the lower Jersey coast. en, a settlement on a strip of beach s out to sea, near the lower end of Bay, was their objective point, and a train ew Jersey Central Railroad bore them r destination.

rai flew along, skirting the shores of Bay, rumbling over the long trestle er Newark Bay and by Staten Island he artist's eye was attracted by a little newsboy, who, seated in one corner of the s puffing a cigarette and diligently reading per.

WELL EMPLOYED.

d Bank reached, a change of cars was made, the New Jersey Southern road was entered . A pretty maiden had taken a seat by one of party meanwhile, and the party became much ested in her. Lakewood was her destination, s learned, by a conversation she had with the uctor; and the party made up its dual mind ltaneously that it would like also to stop at wood. Rather curiously, the party wished mation about Lakewood, and delicately inti- d such to the maiden. "Yes, she was going , but had not been there since a child; had raphed to her friends to 'expect a friend,' as wanted to surprise them and feared they would meet her." The party became deeply ested, and when Lakewood was reached d the pretty maiden to alight and her greet, with much warmth, an elderly far- who had come to meet her. This little incident the party proceeded to chat with the conduct- as the train rolled on mile after mile through wide-spreading pine barrens. Manchester was shed and the party, who had meanwhile formed acquaintance of Engineer Shinn and Fireman , mounted upon the engine and began a lively of twenty-two miles to Barnegat. The engine wed and tossed and plunged along over the not level road-bed; to the east glimpses were caught and then of the blue bay dotted with white , of the snowy beach far beyond and of the ty-winged vessels skimming along the coast out- . Little streams and lakes were passed on ner side, the wind blew cool and pure and strong d laden with aromatic odors from the pines, and th a long whistle the engine slowed and rumbled the sleepy old town of Barnegat.



THE CAPTAINS IN COUNCIL.

A long wait was necessary here, for a part of w Jersey has been reached where trains are easingly never on time and never connect. n old hotel near the track caught the travelers' . They entered and began to study the uaintly worded posters on the walls. One an- unced a "cotillon party at the grove near Tuck- ," another stated that "the goods and chattels oseph Johnson would be sold at public ven- Pictures these were of primitive life, away e stream of travel, and primitive indeed e persons whom they chiefly interested. these, a grizzled, weather-beaten old fellow, whether the duck shooting in this part of ay was as good as formerly. "Wal, I know," he replied; "there haint many now, but Cap'n Bill kin tell yer. Hi, he called out, and his exact counter- forward. "I don't know nuther for said, "but Cap'n Ike can say." And to all appearance was "Cap'n Bill's" joined the group. He didn't know 'n Jim" had to be called in, and he ent. "Cap'n Abe" was summoned, , for the first interrogated proved also to bear that title, now stood together. There was silence for a moment and then "Cap'n Abe" said, "Wal, strangers, you mout git ducks later on, and agin you moutn't, but you kin get good first-class applejack right here and now." The strangers took in the situation, and the party ranged themselves in front of the bar, and in a few moments the Jersey lightning gurgled down five thirsty throats at least. A moment later the train came along and the five captains waved adieu to the "strangers from York" as the latter boarded the cars.

A swift ride of a few minutes; "Tuckerton!" shouted the brakeman, and the train slowed at a little station. A bevy of girls and young men, all browned by the sun and all wearing flannel suits and dresses and Tam O'Shanter caps, got in; several of them rushing into the embraces of certain motherly looking old ladies on the train, while the greetings between them, interspersed with soft "Thees" and "Thous," revealed them as Philadelphia Quakers, bound for Beach Haven, whence the young people had come to meet them. And now the train rumbled out on broad brown marshes, and far and wide on either hand spread the waters of Barnegat Bay; while on the distant horizon ahead rose the hotels at Beach Haven, like a gray cloud over the sea. The beach itself was not visible.

BEACH HAVEN.

but away to the north flashed the red star of Barnegat light-house, and to the south that of Atlantic City burning like a fixed planet. On an on rolled the train until, when the edge of the marsh was reached, and it seemed as if it must topple over into the bay, it came to a sudden stop, and the passengers alighted and boarded a little steamer in waiting. A slow journey of an hour in the Haven Belle, whose propeller, pitched high in consequence of the shallow bay, churned the water into sheets of foam, and Beach Haven was reached. The hotels had now taken form and substance, as did also the beautiful wide beach on which they were situated. A motley throng of sailors, fishermen and negroes crowded forward, and in a minute a train on a little narrow gauge railroad puffed its load to Baldwin, one of the finest hotels on the Atlantic coast. The wind blew cold over the bay in the west from the distant mainland, now shrouded in the dusk of night, but in the east were foaming breakers dashing on the beach, and "sails in the distance speeding fast." "The Fire Island of New Jersey," said the artist, and it well described the place. In the large entrance hall blazed a bright wood fire, and the picturesque groups gathered around it made a perfect picture of the sea-shore in August.

The guests were all Philadelphians, all wore Tom O'Shanter caps, and were nearly all hay-fever sufferers; for the ocean isle affords absolute relief from this prevalent and distressing complaint.

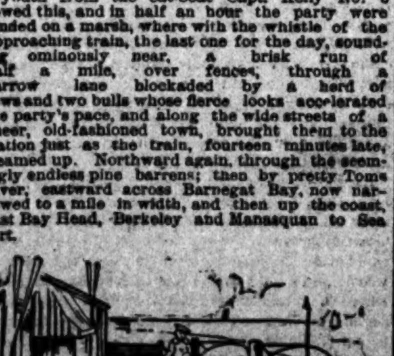
After a night of sound sleep the party woke to a warmer day. The boatman swarmed around, eager for a chance to get a job, and having previously ascertained the party's residence, informed them confidentially that "One New Yorker's wurth ten of them folks from Philadelphy."

CAPT. KELLY'S HOTEL.

After a stroll on the beach watching the bathers and the groups scattered along the strand, the party proceeded to engage a boatman for a sail across the bay to meet the afternoon train homewards at West Creek, above Tuckerton. Their choice fell upon stout, cheery, good-natured "Cap'n Kelly," the proprietor of the "Hotel de Crab," near the dock, and after adieus to their hospitable landlord, Mr. Kittelle and his guests, boarded his cat-boat, the Annie D., and started off.

The Annie D. was a speedy craft, and but for a barge loaded with barrels to be filled with fresh water on the main land, would have made good headway. As it was, with a puffy wind and head tide, three hours passed and the mouth of a long creek which had to be sailed up, was only reached within an hour of the time of the train. Another and lighter cat-boat, commanded by Capt. Kelly No. 2, brother of the first mariner, was hailed, and the party transferred. Capt Kelly No. 2 was not over-communicative and watched his boat carefully, as well he might in a creek so narrow and so shallow that only a few yards could be given to each tack. The stream grew narrower and narrower, and more and more suggestive of the road that ended in a squirrel track and ran up a tree. Finally, a ducking boat, a Barnegat sneak-box, which had been towing behind, was pressed into service, and again was the party transferred. A youth from the cat-boat Capt. Kelly No. 3 rowed this, and in half an hour the party were landed on a marsh, where with the whistle of the approaching train, the last one for the day, sounding ominously near, a brisk run of half a mile, over fences, through a narrow lane blockaded by a herd of cows and two bulls whose fierce looks accelerated the party's pace, and along the wide streets of a queer, old-fashioned town, brought them to the station just as the train, fourteen minutes late, steamed up. Northward again, through the seemingly endless pine barrens; then by pretty Toms River, eastward across Barnegat Bay, now narrowed to a mile in width, and then up the coast, past Bay Head, Berkeley and Manasquan to Sea Girt.

CAPT. KELLY.



THE SHIP ON SHORE.

Here the party alighted, were driven to the handsome Beach House, perched just above the breakers, and with its front piazza arranged like a ship's deck; and then by rare good luck found themselves in clover, for the celebrated Clover Club, of Philadelphia, were enjoying a banquet, at which they became guests. So ended a day in and around Barnegat.

Cincinnati's Registration.

CINCINNATI, OHIO, September 30.—The registration in Cincinnati foots up 60,000, which is about 5,000 less than the total vote at the Presidential election last year.

THE CIVIL COURTS.

Judge Brewer Renders Several Decisions From the Federal Bench.

Application of the Wabash Trustees Overruled—A Breeze Over a Continuance—Question of Preference—White the Brazilian Note Counterfeiter's Removal—A Writ of Mandamus Quashed.

Judge Brewer rendered a few oral decisions this morning in the United States Circuit Court in cases submitted since the opening of the term. The petition of the Central Trust Company of New York and James Cheney, for an order on the Wabash receivers to pay certain expenses attending negotiations, was denied. The petitioners are trustees under the general mortgage, and an agreement has been made between the general mortgage and collateral trust bondholders of the Wabash for a reorganization of the company. The expenses of printing and engraving certificates amounted to $5,000, and no money could be received until the debentures were ready for delivery. The agreement had been assented to by the holders of the general mortgage bonds, representing $8,000,000, and by the holders of all collateral trust bonds. Judge Brewer said that there were no surplus funds in the hands of the receivers, and if there were such funds it would not be proper to authorize an advance such as the petitioners contemplated. The application must be denied.

A Breeze in Court.

Quite a scene occurred in the Federal Court this morning when the trial docket was called. Mr. Overall announced that he was not prepared to go to a hearing in the cases of Hill against the city of Memphis. A misconception had arisen in his mind as to the setting of those cases, and he thought that they would not be called until the Scotland County cases were reached, the 7th of October. He would ask for a continuance.

Mr. Henry A. Cunningham, representing the other side, objected vehemently to any delay. He said that he had spoken with Mr. Overall about the cases only a few days since, and it was understood that a hearing would be reached to-day.

Mr. Overall said that he had no recollection of any such conversation. He would press his motion for a continuance.

Judge Treat overruled the motion for a continuance and said that Mr. Overall must go to a hearing at once.

Mr. Overall said that he would dismiss the cases under the circumstances and file new suits.

Preferred Creditors.

In the case of Clapp and others against Nordmeyer and others, Judge Brewer rendered an oral decision to-day in the United States Circuit Court overruling the demurrer. Leave was given to answer by the November rules. This was a creditor's bill of complaint involving preferences. The debtor on the 30th of January last confessed judgment in favor of certain creditors and executions were issued and levied the same day. A general assignment for the benefit of creditors was made the same day. Judge Brewer said that he felt constrained in this matter to follow the ruling of his predecessor, although he did not believe it was right. Justice Miller, however, had sustained the ruling of his predecessor and, he had no other course. A case involving the same questions had been appealed from the Western District to the Supreme Court of the United States, and he was glad to know that the court of last resort would pass upon it. The Supreme Court of Missouri had held that an insolvent debtor could prefer a creditor. An assignee could not challenge any conveyance made by the debtor.

The Hannibal and Keokuk Case.

The Federal Court divided at noon to-day, Judge Brewer hearing the St. Louis, Hannibal and Keokuk Railroad case to which reference has already been made in the POST-DISPATCH, and Judge Treat in another room hearing the case of Filley against Littlefield. Judge Brewer's attention was given this morning to a hearing on the Fogg claim in the Hannibal and Keokuk case. Judge Treat and not the Master had previously ruled on this matter, and the hearing is now before a full bench. Walter C. Larned of Chicago and D. S. Case of this city represent the trustee for the bond-holders, and Carr & Reynolds represent Mr. Fogg.

A Meeting in Montreal.

Frank Alexe, the hotel proprietor, late last evening filed his answer to the petition for divorce entered by his wife, Julia Alexe, a few days since. He alleges that no marriage took place but that an arrangement to live together was made at Montreal where they first met. The acquaintance was made on the street, and Mr. Alexe alleges that they went to a restaurant and passed the night at a house of ill repute. Mr. Alexe alleges that in this city he introduced the defendant as his wife. He had occasion to reprimand her here for encouraging the attentions of a young clerk and it exasperated her to such an extent, that she placed cowhage in his bed. Mr. Alexe further alleges that he had a wife living when the marriage alleged by the defendant took place; hence he could not enter into the marriage relation with the defendant. Mr. Alexe further alleges that, although an unmarried woman, the defendant was the mother of a child before he met her.

A Passenger's Peril.

Geo. D. Reynolds in behalf of Alex. W. Payne, a minor, entered an intervening petition to-day in the United States Circuit Court in the Wabash case. On the 30th of January last Payne entered a passenger caboose attached to a freight train to be conveyed from Edina to West Quincy. The track, it is alleged, was in a defective condition, and in consequence the caboose was thrown off the rails. The petitioner, to save his life, jumped from the platform and received permanent bodily injuries. He wants $5,000 damages. His guardian, W. C. Hollester, represents him.

Mr. Reynolds asked that the case be docketed for hearing before a jury, and Judge Treat somewhat sharply remarked that the case would go with others of a similar nature to the master. It was useless to make such applications in the face of the well-known ruling of the court.

The Brazilian Note Counterfeiter.

United States District Attorney Bliss received the following telegram to-day from C. B. Pearre, the District Attorney at Waco, Texas:

"I will be present when the question of Joseph H. White's removal is discussed before Judge McCormick; my opinion is that White should be removed for trial to St. Louis."

A strong movement, on the part of the friends of White in Waco, is directed against his removal to this district for trial. A few days since his bail was reduced to $5,000, and the officers of the Government began to feel uneasy about the consequences. There is very little doubt, however, that he will be brought here to stand his trial at the November term of the District Court.

The Stumberg Estate.

The will of Henry G. H. Stumberg, bearing date September 23, 1878, was admitted to probate to-day. Each of the children—Frederick Johann, August Heinrich and William Frederick—receive $10,000, and the residue of the estate is left to the widow. At her death August Heinrich Stumberg is to receive $2,000 and the balance is to be shared equally by the children.

A Mandamus Squashed.

In the case of Laird against the city of DeSoto, Judge Brewer to-day sustained the motion to quash the writ of alternative mandamus. This case involved a judgment against a municipal corporation, and the alternative writ issued prior to the execution.

PLAYING IN BAD LUCK.

A Leading Cincinnati Clothing Firm Makes an Assignment With Preferences.

CINCINNATI, September 30.—Leopold Rosenfeld and Meyer Kaufman, clothiers, 61 West Pearl street, under the name of Rosenfeld & Kaufman, made an assignment to-day to Louis S. Levy. The liabilities are estimated at $100,000, and the assets at $50,000. Yesterday chattel mortgages upon the stock, fixtures, etc., were given to preferred creditors to the amount of nearly $40,000. Among these are: James Levy, guardian; James Brown, A. Ackerland, Lottie Kaufman, B. Schroeder and J. Victor. The firm has rated very high, but has been unfortunate recently. Mr. Kaufman has been blind and wholly unable to do business. Mr. Rosenfeld lost his wife a year ago and has since been almost incompetent to attend to business through grief. Their failure was a thorough surprise.

SPORTSMEN IN COUNCIL.

Outlines of Laws Recommended For the Preservation of Fish and Game.

Reports of the Resolution Committees—Dates Suggested for Close Seasons—Regulation of Guns, Bags, Nets and Methods and Periods for Hunting and Fishing—A Big Day's Work by the Convention.

The Sportsmen's Convention at its afternoon session yesterday discussed the question of open and close seasons and adopted the following dates for different kinds of game: The close season for deer was fixed at from January 1 to October 1; for wild turkey from January 1 to October 1; for ruffed grouse from January 1 to September 1; quail, January 1 to October 15; woodcock, January 1 to July 4; ducks, geese and snipe, February 1 to September 1. The following committees were appointed to consider questions relating to fish and game:

On game—Hon. Jackson L. Smith, Col. H. H. Rottaken, Maj. J. M. Taylor, Philo Dunning, J. F. Blackburn, Capt. W. W. Judy, Dr. N. Rowe, W. B. Hauworth of Quincy, Ill.; N. S. Young of Iowa; W. A. James of Dakota and Walter Williams of Tennessee.

On fish—Dr. Steedman of St. Louis, George Bain, Enoch Moore, S. P. Bartlett.

The Elks' Club extended all the privileges of members to the delegates, an invitation to visit the Merchants' Exchange was received and complimentary tickets to the Exposition were given by the local sportsmen.

The chair nominated as members of the special committee of five to draft the scheme of the permanent National Association: Messrs. M. F. Taylor of St. Louis; Prof. Holmes of Michigan; Yantis of Arkansas; Gus Griffey, President of the Iowa State Sportsmen's Association, and Col. J. Q. Dallmeyer of Jefferson City, Mo.

The convention adjourned at 6 o'clock to meet again at 9:30 this morning. The various committees held sessions last night.

TO-DAY'S SESSION.

The sportsmen during the first day's session showed themselves fully as capable of steady and effective mouth-shooting as gun-shooting. They came up this morning, however, smiling, although late after their labors of the day before. It was fully 10:30 before Chairman Johnson rapped for order. The first business was the hearing of reports.

The committee to whom was referred the resolutions relating to fish protection and propagation, submitted the following report:

That the catching of game and food fishes, should be prohibited in the public waters of the different States, during the spawning seasons, except for purposes of propogation or distribution by or under the direction of the fish commissioners; that the prohibited periods, should, as far as practicable, be uniform and of sufficient duration to include the spawning periods in all these States of the same species of fish, say for spring spawners, from February 1st to August 1st, and for fall spawners from September 1st to April 1st, excepting migratory fish, and that the close season for such should be regulated by the several states in which they are found; that all obstruction to the ingress or egress of fish to and from their spawning grounds in streams and lakes should be prohibited, and the construction of proper fish ways, over dams required and regulated, and that the fish commissioners should be the judges as to what shall constitute a proper and sufficient fish way. The expense of putting in and maintaining such fish way shall be borne by the owner of such obstruction or dam.

That no seine, net, trap, weir or other device for catching fish should be permitted to be used, where it is legal to use them, whose mesh is less than two inches square; that illegal seines, nets, weir or, other devices should be confiscated and destroyed wherever found.

That the propagation and protection of fish and game and the enforcement of all laws applicable to the same, shall in each State, be placed in the hands of a paid commission, to be styled a fish and game commission, composed of one or more competent persons; that such commission shall be authorized to appoint deputies or wardens throughout the respective States, with power to make arrests or institute prosecutions as circumstances require, under the supervision of the commissioners.

That our respective Legislatures be requested to recommend the passage of such National legislation as will regulate the Menhaden and other fisheries along the Atlantic coast and great lakes

The report was read by section and discussed. All sections were adopted as reported.

Hon. R. H. Mann of Chester, Ill., submitted the following amendment to the last clause, which was adopted:

"That it is the sense of this Convention that our Congressmen be asked to endeavor to provide such legislation for the preservation of fisheries in the Mississippi and other public waters of the United States, not controlled by State Legislatures, as will be in harmony with the objects of this Convention."

NO DYNAMITE.

Fish Commissioner Jones of Wisconsin offered an amendment prohibiting the use of dynamite or poisons for the destruction of fish, which was adopted.

Mr. E. S. Holmes of Michigan offered an amendment to the effect that a reasonable bounty should be paid for the destruction of predatory fish and animals that are not useful as food, such as gars, dogfish and hard-shell turtles.

This amendment was also adopted and incorporated in the report, which was then adopted as a whole.

The Committee on Scheme for Permanent Organization sent in a recommendation that the convention take a recess after taking action on reports of other committees, and that all members of organized gun and fishing clubs organize into a caucus and pass upon the constitution submitted for the National Association, and also that the records of the convention be turned over to the National Association and that all clubs represented be requested to become members of the Association.

The consideration of the recommendation was postponed until after the hearing of the report of the Committee on Game Protection. The committee not being prepared to report, the secretary called the roll for the purpose of ascertaining the number of members in each.

The chairman stated that there were many communications in the hands of the secretary from Fish Commissioners and representatives of associations on the subjects considered by the convention, and, on motion, the secretary was ordered to read them. A letter was read from Chas. H. Colton, Fort Reno, I. T., on the depredations of pot hunters in the Territory.

Otto Gramm, Fish Commissioner of Wyoming Territory, heartily indorsed the aims of the convention and mentioned the need of wardens in the Territories to prevent the wanton slaying of elk, deer, buffalos and antelopes. J. H. Taggart, manager of the Arizona Fish Commission, also wrote indorsing the work proposed by the Convention. Letters were also read from Edward L. Bartlett, Santa Fe, N. M.; J. E. Hasford, president Capitol City, Washington, D. C., Gun Club; C. J. Huske, superintendent Fish Commission of South Carolina; C. B. Reynolds of the Forest and Stream; J. F. Ives of Meriden, Conn.

Secretary West stated that these were samples of hundreds of sportsmen from nearly every State in the Union.

General Smith, chairman of the committee on resolutions looking to the protection of game. Submitted.

A majority report stating that all members of the committee could not sanction it and in all probability there would be a minority report. The majority report was as follows with regard to the regulations of the close season:

That the close seasons should be adopted in the several states and territories east of the Rocky Mountains for deer, turkey, pinnated grouse, ruffed grouse, quail, woodcock, wild duck, wild goose, Wilson snipe, pigeon, dove, upland plover, rabbit and squirrel, and that said close seasons should cover the breeding period of said animals birds and such additional time as is necessary to prevent a further reduction of the present number of the same, and that the

shall be as follows: Deer, January 1 to October 1; turkey, January 1 to October 1; pinnated and ruffed grouse, January 1 to September 1; quail, January 1 to October 15; duck, February 1 to September 1; geese, February 1 to September 1; Wilson snipe, May 1 to September 1; woodcock, January 1 to July 4; plover, May 1 to September 1; turtle dove, January 1 to August 1; wild pigeon, April 1 to October 1; squirrel, January 1 to June 1; rabbit, excepting jack-rabbit, February 1 to October 1.

2. That hunting of deer with hounds be prohibited at all seasons in all States.
3. That song and insectivorous birds be protected the year round.
4. That the trapping, ensnaring and netting of game, insectivorous and song birds, except for scientific purposes, be entirely prohibited.
5. That the robbery of the nests of any birds mentioned in the preceding paragraphs, or the interference with them while nesting or rearing the young, be prohibited under severe penalties imposed by law.
6. That the killing or catching by night of any animals or birds mentioned be forbidden by law.
7. That no gun of a larger gauge or caliber than No. 10 be used in the pursuit and capture of any kind of game.
8. The committee recommended adding game protection to the duties of Fish Commissioners, and the appointment of wardens or deputies, whose compensation shall be one-half the net proceeds of all fines recovered through their instrumentality.
9. That the Association appoint a committee whose duty it shall be to prepare a set of laws, and to press the passage of the same by lawful means by the Legislatures of the States, which shall cover the ground considered in the report.
10. That it is the opinion of the committee the greed for large bags is destroying the game of the country, and that, while they are exhibitions of skill in the use of the gun, they are not sportsmanlike, bring sportsmanship to the level of pot hunting, and are in direct conflict with the principle of the protection of game, and it is therefore recommended that each individual be limited to twenty-five birds a day in all other than ducks and snipe, and in the latter to fifty a day.

Mr. Hauworth of the minority stated that he and his colleagues could not agree on the matter of the close season for ducks and snipe, and therefore felt compelled to differ with the majority in the report. The minority desired the close season for these two kinds of game to extend from April 15 to September 1.

The following resolution was then submitted:

"WHEREAS, It has been represented to this convention that undiscriminate slaughter of game is constantly going on in the Indian Territory regardless of seasons, and, whereas there is no present method of preventing the same except through the instrumentality of the Indian authorities;

"Therefore, Resolved that all clubs in States bordering on the Territory having for their object the protection of game be requested to correspond with the Indian authorities and make such arrangements as may be most conducive to the protection of game in the Territory."

The convention then adjourned until 2 o'clock to visit the Merchants' Exchange and for lunch.

ON 'CHANGE.

At 2:30 o'clock the delegates to the Sportsmen's Convention, headed by Mr. L. D. Dozier, marched to the Chamber of Commerce. Arrived on the floor, Mr. Dozier introduced them to President Haarstick and the officers of the Exchange, who in turn introduced them to the members. The crowd quickly broke into small groups and the visitors were made to feel at home by the members who showed them around.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The convention reassembled at 2.30 o'clock, and proceeded at once to the consideration of the report of the Committee on Game Protection, by sections.

RAILROAD BLACK LIST.

Names of St. Louisans who Don't Stand Well With Railroads.

The railroad black-list which is published monthly by the Western Association of General Passenger Agents has just been issued for September. It contains a few new names for St. Louisans, and under the rules they are debarred from any railroad courtesy whatever. Even a reduced ticket is out of their reach. The names of St. Louisans added to the list are as follows: George Adams Bauer, late Deputy City Collector, is charged with having "sold a trip pass;" John G. Boyle, "a newspaper man," is marked, "gets transportation by misrepresentation." F. & S. Fucks, milliners, have "sell orders for shippers, tickets to scalpers" placed in the same line with their names. There are no new names among the St. Louis papers. Rev. Father Sterms, a Catholic priest at Pacific, Mo., is alleged to have transferred his special clergy tickets.

"Tips" in English Homes.

London Letter to San Francisco Argonaut.

There is, I believe, a scale to guide a guest in the amount of tips. A good deal, of course, depends upon the size of the house, the number of servants, the style and grandeur of all that. When you go away is when you tip. The butler you must fee, if you have to walk to the station. Less than gold to him you cannot offer. At some houses a butler would sneer at anything under a £5-note. If a man shoots, he can't possibly get off without feeing the game-keeper, and some game-keepers can't look at anything less than "paper." The smallest paper money in England is a £5 Bank of England note. Then there is the footman who looks after your things (if you don't bring your own valet with you) and brushes your clothes, fills your bath in the morning and unpacks your portmanteaus when you arrive and packs them up for you when you go away. He must get—if your visit extends for a week—at the rate of three shillings a day. If you stay one night you had best give him half a sovereign, for you'll not be sorry when you come again. The housemaid, also, who does your bedroom must not be forgotten, and be sure she'll give you plenty of opportunity to find her alone in your room, dusting some ornament on the dressing-table or chimney-piece, if you want to tip her when no one is looking. The prettier she is the more you give her, and the longer you are about it. You can tip her every day if you like, and the chances are that you will like, for few men, old or young, are proof against female beauty; and the housemaids in the houses of the upper classes in England are, in their saucy little caps and neat cotton gowns, about as pretty a set of young women as you'll find in Great Britain. Their ranks have supplied more than one "beauty" to the burlesque stage and soubrette line of theatrical business. As a rule, one might say, they won't object to a considerable amount of strongly exhibited affection accompanying the tip you bestow upon them, the strength and extent of their reciprocity naturally depending on the size of your present. The upper housemaid—one of whose subordinates your particular white-capped and rosy-faced damsel is—would like to have a parting remembrance. The cook, too—be he chef or she cordon bleu—will be glad to have his or her efforts to please your palate duly appreciated by the presentation of a golden impression of Victoria's pudgy profile.

Gen. Grant's Son-in-Law.

From the London World.

Mr. Algernon Sartoris has sung himself into the hearts of so many of his father's tenantry as belong to the Llangennech estate whom he met for the first time last week, at a dinner given at the Coasting Pilot Club Room in that town. When the speeches had been got through more lively proceedings set in, and Mr. Sartoris volunteered a sea song, which was really done in excellent style, and went down amazingly. Mr. Sartoris (a son-in-law of the late Gen. Grant), has had the estate made over to him by his father, and will undertake its management and reside among the tenants.

BAYARD SNUBBED HIM.

How the Secretary of State Treated the President's Friend.

A Verbal Message From the President Rejected—The Diplomatic Service—A Disgraced Consul Promoted—The President's Action in the Case of Lieutenant Chase, a Victim of the Army Ring.

Special Correspondence of the POST-DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, September 28.—I heard yesterday the story of a mortifying snub given by Mr. Bayard to one of the best known men in New York, who came to him with the personal indorsement of the President. After the President had gone into the White House last spring, one of his oldest friends in New York came to him and asked the privilege of naming a candidate for appointment to one of the Central European missions. This friend was one of the most prominent men in New York, a man of great wealth and high standing. He contributed very materially to the election of Mr. Cleveland and therefore had a perfect right to ask the favor just mentioned. The President recognized this right and granted it as a matter of course. This friend of his then suggested a gentleman almost equally well known. The President was very much pleased with the suggestion and said that the request should be complied with. His definite promise for the place was regarded as good as the Commission. The candidate for a foreign misson was notified by his friend of his successful interview with the President. He was told to come to Washington and first confer with the President before going to the State Department. The candidate called at the White House. There he found the President eager and anxious to be civil to him. The President confirmed the news and said that he should have any one of the second European missions. This gentleman was so prominent the President did not think it worth while to give him a note of introduction to Mr. Bayard. He said to the candidate, "Will you please call on Mr. Bayard and tell him my wishes in this matter, so that he may send me the commission at once for signature?"

The candidate walked out of the White House as certain of his place as if he were already in it. He met Mr. Bayard at the door just as he was going out. As Mr. Bayard did not recognize him, he introduced himself, saying briefly what was his business. "I have a very important matter on hand and this is no place to talk upon a subject of this kind. If you will go over to the State Department and await me there I will see you after I have had a talk with the President." The candidate walked over to the State Department and waited. When Mr. Bayard finally came in he gave no sign of having previously met his visitor. Seeing this the visitor said, "I am Mr. X." Without waiting for one word more Mr. Bayard said very rudely, "And pray, who is Mr. X?" The prisoner was so overwhelmed by this reception that for a few moments he could say nothing. Then he rallied and told what the President had directed him to say to the Secretary. Mr. Bayard received this message with anger. He said, "I don't know about any private understanding you may have with the President. This is the first I have heard of it. If you go back to him and get that message in writing I will of course make out your commission, but I don't propose to act upon any alleged private understanding that you say you have with the President without some very direct proof of it."

At this insulting speech the visitor got up and left the room. He was so indignant that he went over to the White House and left a "P. P. C." card for the President, and without another word of explanation he went back to New York. He has since said that Mr. Bayard's manner cured him of all ambition of desiring a place in the diplomatic service under such a man, and that was the reason why he did not go back to the President. The story of his treatment was afterwards related to his friend who secured him the promise of the place. Neither of them have been seen in Washington since.

I hear nearly every day some interesting story connected with the diplomatic service under Mr. Bayard, but it is difficult to get permission to use names. The traditions of secrecy in the diplomatic service and in the State Department are so thoroughly established that it is hard to break over them. One of the returning Consuls from Europe told me that one of his associates on the continent became engaged in marriage to three women at the same time. He became involved in three actions for breach of promise. It was proposed by the authorities where he was accredited to have him settle the three cases by the payment of a certain sum of money. As each case involved more scandal than ordinarily attaches to a suit for a plain breach of promise—in fact, seduction and paternity of an illegitimate child were alleged in each case—the kindly authorities thought that they were doing the Consul a favor to permit him to settle his numerous love affairs upon a money basis. He pretended to accept this solution, but got a leave of absence and came back home. The State Department about a month ago, after hearing full reports from the European district where he was, promoted him and sent him to a prominent South American Consulate. This is only one of many of the petty scandals that I have heard during this fall about our Consuls. In some of the foreign countries where the credit of America is very poor the reason is owing to the dishonesty of the Consuls. A number of the new Consuls who have been sent abroad have sent letters here complaining bitterly of the fact that they have been sent to places where their predecessors have swindled the communities where they have resided, and have left the town in debt to nearly every one.

Lieut. George F. Chase, who has had such a fight with General Crook, was recently sentenced to be dismissed from the army by a dishonest court-martial packed against him by General Crook. President Cleveland in reviewing the papers in the case mitigated the sentence to suspension upon half pay for a year. But in so doing he wrote an order which fully vindicated Lieutenant Chase and reflected in the severest language upon the conduct of his superiors. Lieutenant Chase is 35 years of age. He is tall, broad shouldered, with the trim, compact look of a man who takes a proper pride in himself. He is a graduate of West Point and of the school at Fortress Monroe. He has a handsome face, browned by exposure upon the frontier. His features are regular. His hair, eyes and slight, crisp mustache are dark. He has much more manliness and independence than are often seen in a subordinate army officer. It is on account of his ambition for the army that he became involved in the trouble which sent him to a court-martial. He complained of the misuse of troops under him, and on account of this complaint incurred the enmity of his commanding officer. The attempt to break and disgrace him is a shameful story of injustice. If it had not been for the cry that some sort of discipline must be maintained in the army the President would have set aside entirely the findings of the court-martial. It is not improbable that he will send him back to his regiment within a short time. The order that the President wrote in his case fully vindicates the young officer and shows that the President is above being influenced by the army ring.

The real truth of the situation, so far as the army is concerned, is this. It has gone to seed. Soldiers are no longer trained in a knowledge of military warfare, but are worked as day laborers in the interest of commanding officers. The whole secret of the prolongation of the troubles in New Mexico and Arizona with the Indians lies in the fact that none of the soldiers there have been trained in a knowledge of scouting and Indian fighting. It costs Congress $750,000 a year to maintain a cavalry regiment. Yet nearly every one of the twenty regiments in the service is improperly employed in work which forces men to desert and renders them helpless when needed. It was Chase's protest against this system which brought down upon his head the wrath of the army ring.

Cullings From the Justices.

In Justice McCaffery's Court William Mueller of the Independent Order of Seven Wise Men, Degree Conclave No. 1, has sued Fritz Thomas and H. A. Tanz, of the old order of the Seven Wise Men, for the possession of one wardrobe and all regalia in their possession. The case involves a split in the order in which a new order was established, when a split occurred.

In the same court D. Guy has been sued for an account due by James H. Forbes and also by Steinwender, Stifel & Co. for an account due them, both amounting to $[illegible].

James L. Barron has been sued by E. S. Walton for a due bill for $[illegible].

A. J. Jordan has sued the Pacific Express Company for failure to deliver $[illegible] worth of goods to Reynolds & Wooster.

In Justice Sheehan's court there was a good deal of fun this morning, [illegible] M. Driver sued J. Knight Hardy for $192 65 for board of Hardy's children. Mrs. Driver was the most interesting witness, and from her testimony it transpired that Hardy attempted to pay his children's board with cast-off shoes, old clothes and a sow with pig which afterward died. Mrs. Driver claimed that when she married Mr. Driver she married the whole family and she was sorry for it. The lawyer brought out a good deal of testimony that they didn't want. Judge Sheehan occasionally had to interfere to keep Mrs Driver and the lawyers for the defense from having a wordy war. Mrs. D. accused Hardy of perjury and other crimes, which testimony was not wanted. Every time Mrs. D. was asked a question she gave a lot of damaging information against Mr. Hardy whom she called "Jim," before she could be headed off. Mrs. Driver went on the stand at 10 a. m., and at noon she still was explaining.

CONGRESSMAN STONE.

What He Gathered on a Trip to Washington City.

The tall form of Congressman Stone of Nevada, Mo., was seen among the arriving guests at the Laclede early this morning. He had just got in from Washington, and was stopping over on his way home.

"There is nothing new that the papers have not already published about the St. Louis offices," said he when approached on that subject. "When I left Washington things appeared to be shaping themselves in Hyde's direction for the Postmastership. It is my opinion that he will get the place. Of course, it is impossible to tell how Mr. Cleveland will act. He is a very singular man, and he is just as likely to go away from the favorite as to stay by him."

"Do you think that if the St. Louis representatives agree upon a slate the President will indorse it?"

"As I say, you cannot tell what the President will do. Of course, if a certain set of men are vouched for by the Missouri representatives it is likely that Mr. Cleveland will appoint them. But he has been known to depart from this, as, for instance, in the case of New York City."

"Do you think the St. Louis representatives and the Senators will agree upon a slate?"

"I do not know. There are so many conflicting interests that it is likely no agreement will be reached."

"How are affairs in your district?"

"Well, my city is cared for, but there are some offices at Carthage, Pleasant Hill and Clinton which have yet to be filled. This will be done shortly."

Mr. Stone will leave for Nevada at 8 o'clock this evening.

EAST ST. LOUIS.

Mr. John Vollman, the baker, endeavored to make a short turn with his wagon on Broadway this morning, and in doing so, the wagon was overturned and the contents strewn over the street. The overturning of the wagon frightened the horse, which attempted to disengage itself from the harness, and would have probably severely injured Mr. Vollman, who had not time to get out of the way, had not several persons who witnessed his perilous position ran to his rescue and succeeded in quieting the animal. Mr. Vollman was not injured, and the only damage sustained was the loss of the bread.

Jules Jarvers, a Centralia farmer, started for St. Louis this morning with a load of fine potatoes. When he arrived in the city about daylight he discovered that one of the sideboards of the wagon had fallen out and one-half his load of potatoes were missing.

The eight months old child of John Beckman, of the First Ward, which died yesterday, was buried this morning.

E. T. Simpson, a member of a trapeze company that is stopping at 179 S. Twelfth street, reported to the police last evening that his room had been entered and $179 stolen.

The Dean Investigating Committee met last evening. Dr. Adelsberger concluded his testimony, and after some documentary evidence had been considered, the committee adjourned.

Thirty-five feet of hose stolen from Anthony Boeslein's residence, 1820 Victor street, by James Smith, who is now locked up, was recovered yesterday by Sergeants McNamee and Head.

A mulatto named Nick Murray, who is supposed to be the last man who saw John Prince, the negro who was murdered at Ferguson, was arrested yesterday and locked up in the North Market Street Station.

The Union Capital Hall was crowded last night with workmen eager to hear Mr. Richard Trevellick's lecture in the interest of the Knights of Labor. Mr. Trevellick spoke for fully three hours and was listened to with great attention.

A man named Lewis Burbank was arrested by Officer Tredway at the corner of Fourth and Chestnut streets last evening, on suspicion. He is said to have been implicated in burglarizing a house on Washington avenue a week or so ago.

The Executive Committee on Street Illumination met last evening at the Mercantile Club. Mr. Case was appointed to visit the Mayor and request him to direct that no business or advertising devices be stretched across the streets that night near the illuminations.

The Missouri Division of the Travelers' Protective Association met last night at the Southern. The following were elected officers: J. W. Wright, of St. Louis, president; A. Benjamin, Kansas City, vice-president; John J. Gilmore, secretary and treasurer. A committee of three was appointed to draft by-laws.

Shortly after dusk last evening Mrs. Charlotte Goodwin, of 2820 Dayton street, who was walking on Jefferson avenue between Carr and Biddle streets, was knocked down by a boy named Jack Stewart and her satchel containing $[illegible] in cash taken from her. Stewart was pursued by Officers Meehan and Ryan, who had witnessed what had taken place from a distance, and captured with the stolen property in his possession.

HENRI BEAUGRAND.

Montreal's Courageous Mayor Well Known in St. Louis.

His Newspaper Venture Here Which Ruined Him Financially—How He Attained His Success in Canada—Talks With Beaugrand's Old Friends.

The Montreal Mayor, Henri Beaugrand, whose life has been threatened by the anti-vaccinating mobs of the leading city of the Dominion, is well known in St. Louis. He is remembered as having been the editor of a French paper here in the latter part of the 'seventies, which he conducted about a year, but failed to make it a success. The paper was called La Republique, and its owner and editor, M. Beaugrand, who is now the wealthy executive of a great city, was a rather impecunious fellow, good-hearted, lively, bright and energetic. "He was a very ambitious man," said M. Seguenot, the editor of La Patriote, this morning, "and full of nerve and fire, but was held back by his ill-health. He was always sickly, his complaint being asthma. His history, as I remember it, is this: He came here from Fall River, Mass., with his paper, La Republique. He didn't succeed here, however. He was a tall, pale man, very genial and winning in his way, and he made many friends here. When he left St. Louis he was in very poor circumstances and went back to Massachusetts, where he lived for awhile with his wife's family. Shortly after that he went to Montreal, where he obtained a position in the Department of Justice, I believe. The Liberals were then in power, but when the Conservatives came in Beaugrand lost his place. That was six years ago. Then he was asked by the Liberals to take charge of a paper which they had collected some money to buy, and he did so. He started his paper, La Patrie, in this way. With this paper he fought the Conservatives very bitterly, and, as he was a good manager, his paper prospered. It soon had a large circulation and plenty of influence. He had a very good writer on the paper, Louis Frechet, a very talented man, and this helped him along wonderfully. This spring as a Liberal candidate for mayor against Beaudry, who had been mayor of Montreal for twenty years. His candidacy was laughed at. Nobody thought he would be elected, and it was this feeling that elected him, for Beaudry's friends did not turn out and vote and Beaugrand's did. Beaugrand is about 38 years old and is now very well off. He is a most remarkable example of a successful man."

BEAUGRAND CAME OUT

Mr. J. A. Schultz, who presides over a fancy-work store, on Olive street between Fifth and Sixth, is an old friend of Beaugrand and corresponds with him regularly. He tells Beaugrand's history very prettily.

"When Beaugrand came to St. Louis he had about $1,200, but he sunk every cent of it in his paper. He lived then with his wife in two rooms on the fourth floor of a building on Pine street near Sixth, and lived very closely. He was a splendid fellow and everybody was sorry when he went away. That was in 1878. He was next heard from in Montreal, where he had a place in the City Hall, I believe he was clerk of the City Council. He did not hold this place long and the Liberals, the party he belonged to, bought out an old paper and started him in business. I always corresponded with him and supposed he was working on a salary, or at any rate doing but fairly well. In 1880 I went on East and he wrote me to visit him. I went to Montreal, where I was met by him and taken to an elegant house. I opened my eyes considerably. Beaugrand had telephonic connection with his office and his house was a model of comfort and luxury. After a very swell dinner he took me to his office and showed me the extent of his business. Then we visited the city departments. Everybody made a fuss over him, and when we got home I asked him, 'Look here, Harry, what does all this mean?' He laughed and then told me for the first time of his success. He was of his paper, which sold so well that the street sales alone paid running expenses. It is a penny paper—that is, two cents, a penny in Montreal being equal to two cents here. Yes, Beaugrand is a great man. I have visited him every year since, and he has been to St. Louis frequently. He is unassuming and in every sense a man of the people. He is a rich man now, and if he lives will make a great name in Canada, but I am afraid this excitement will kill him. He is not strong, and this thing is likely to result seriously. He is a brave man, but very kind-hearted. He would not willingly be the cause of bloodshed."

FREIGHT DISCRIMINATION.

Mr. Newton Childs Tells How He Would Have Killed it.

Mr. Newton Childs of Kansas City came into the city this morning and registered at the Lindell. Mr. Childs was one of the Kansas City representatives in the last Legislature, and made a reputation as an anti-railroad man on a bill which was snowed under at the close of the session. "If my bill had passed," said he this morning when button-holed by a POST-DISPATCH reporter, "there would be no complaint of discrimination. It provided against the pooling of parallel lines and contained a carefully prepared tariff which would have put an end to the ignoring of small towns by railroads. Freights would have been so much a mile, and no railroad could carry one class of freight 300 miles for little or nothing while charging an extortionate rate on the same class for a short distance."

"If you are returned to the Legislature will you introduce your bill again?"

"It is not likely I will stand for the Legislature unless they put up a new hotel in Jefferson City in the meantime, but if I should, you may depend upon it the anti-pooling bill will be introduced."

"Do you think it would be received more favorably?"

"I do, indeed. I think the railroads will come to grief in the next Legislature unless they succeed in packing the Senate again, as they did the last time."

"How are the Federal offices in Kansas City?"

"Well, Hasbrook has the Custom House, you know, and the next thing to be given out is the Post Office. We look for a change in the Postmastership there within a week."

"Who is likely to get that position?"

"The principal aspirants are Judge Adkins and ex-Mayor Shelley. I am inclined to think Shelley has the lead and will be the next Postmaster."

"You have had a Fair up there lately, haven't you?"

"Now, here, come off," said Mr. Childs, retreating a step farther and raising his umbrella. "I think that Fair has been torn up enough already by the papers. It is to be deplored that it turned out as it did. Everybody who has the best interests of Kansas City at heart was disgusted with it. It was a swap game of the worst kind, and nearly every stranger who went in there was robbed by thimble-riggers, dice and shell workers, wheel of fortune men and other sharpers, each of whom paid $200 a day for a license. The Commissioners, of course, must have known that no man could hope to make enough to warrant him in paying $200 a day for a license, and should have refused to allow these men to enter, but they didn't, and the result was a regular robber's paradise. But 'say,'" added Mr. Childs, as he was starting off, "for goodness sake don't say I told you."

LIBERAL IS LUCKY.

According to the Report of G. H. Walser, the Founder.

The founder of the town of Liberal, Mo., Mr. G. H. Walser, is in the city, having registered at the Planters' House this morning. Liberal is the city which is described in free-thinking journals as "a community without God and without a saloon." It is situated in one of the counties bordering on Kansas near Fort Scott, and is peopled by several hundred followers of Thomas Payne and Bob Ingersoll. The schism in its people, which resulted in the exodus of a number of religionists and the establishment of a rival town just outside the Liberal line, called Denison, has been published in the St. Louis papers. Mr. Walser was asked this morning how his people were progressing. "Splendidly, splendidly," said he with enthusiasm. "We are being added to daily."

"How is the opposition town?"

"Denison? Why I am selling land to them every week. They are all coming back into Liberal. They didn't grow as rapidly as they thought they would. The preacher they had with them and who spread so many libels about Liberal has gone to Canada I believe and will not return."

"Have you added any new features to the town?"

"No, we have our lyceum, our school and our dancing hall, and with the concerts and [illegible] and dancing parties which are given the young people we get along very happily. The coal beds in the vicinity are being developed very thoroughly, and as the railroad has run a switch in there it is likely we will do a heavy coal business."

Mr. Walser joined his wife, who has been here several days, and will return to-night.

CAUSED BY DRY ROT.

Collapse of a Four-Story Brick Building in Chicago this Morning.

CHICAGO, ILL., September 30.—A four-story brick building in the rear of Nos. 196 and 198 South Clark street, collapsed at 2:30 this morning. The basement of the wrecked structure was used as the working part of a bakery and several employes were engaged there just prior to the fall. They, however, were warned by the cracking of the walls and rafters and left the scene of danger only a few minutes before the roof fell in with a crash, carrying with it the cornices and all the floors down to the first story. The rear wall also fell out, destroying several old sheds that stood adjacent. The loss is estimated at $5,000, as the contents of the building were very valuable, there being $10,000 worth of desiccated eggs alone in one part. The second floor was stored with flour. On the third there was a large machine shop with a valuable plant, and the fourth floor was devoted to the manufacture of printing rollers. It was reported that several men were missing, and firemen have since been clearing away the debris to ascertain if any unfortunates are buried there.

LATER.—It was found, however, fortunately, that no one had been injured. The structure was originally built for Charles Woodman, by Coxe Brothers. The supports throughout the entire building were wooden and it was ascertained that the collapse was caused by dry rot in the timbers at the point where the girders rested on the joints. The building had given no evidence of its weakness until its collapse. Some of the men working in the basement had a narrow escape from being involved in the ruin. The present proprietors had taken the building after it had been pronounced in good condition by architects. They will tear the entire structure down.

The Police Board.

The Police Commissioners held a meeting yesterday afternoon, the full Board being present. Morris, the man arrested by Officer Ahearn as drunk, when he was in a fit, withdrew his charge against the officer and they shook hands before the Board. Officer Tarley, charged with unnecessary violence toward a lady named Mahoney while arresting her, had his case continued until Tuesday next. The complaint of the livery stable keepers, that the Hansom cabs were accorded too many special privileges, was taken under advisement. Twenty-five specials were sworn in for Fair Week. Officer Pat Burke was made a detective, vice John Armstrong, resigned.

Merchants' Bureau of Entertainment.

A bureau will be opened at the Bee Line ticket office, northwest corner Broadway and Chestnut street, to-morrow morning, October 1, for the registry of private families and boarding having rooms for rent during Fair Week. are requested to act promptly in furnishing requisite information, as, in addition to the attractions of Festival Week, more than newspapers in the country tributary will this notice the fact that all who come will be dire to respectable private families and boarding where rooms may be had at reasonable rates. of itself will bring an unusually large demand first-class accommodations. It will be rememb that this is the sixth year of the Merchants' Bur and that no charge of any kind is made for service rendered.

$10 Ten Dollars. $10
There are a great many $10 Suits in the market; in fact, the woods are full of them. They bob up serenely in front of every clothing store, and stare you in the face from glittering show-windows. They represent every hue of the rainbow, and, like the latest 5c cigar, are the best on earth! But, gentle stranger, have you seen OURS? If not you have our sympathy, for it won't pay you to miss a sight at the Famous $10 Suits. They are not only A1 all-wool material, but they are sewed together in such shape that only a railroad collision could induce the seams to part company. And for style and fit they are "up—away up." A great many millionaires and coupon-clippers won't wear a $10 Suit. We feel sorry for these gentlemen. They are missing golden opportunities of showing the world how they can rise superior to circumstances and adopt the garb of the people. See our $10 Suits by all means. If you're a bachelor, they'll get you a wife; if you're a benedict, they'll make your wife happy; if you're a swell or dude, your friends will think a "high-up" merchant tailor built 'em; and if you're a sensible business man, you'll have one on your back before the fiery-footed steeds that pull the chariot of the day god unhitches in front of Phœbus' mansion. (No charge for this sweet talk.) Come and buy a TEN-DOLLAR SUIT FROM "FAMOUS" (20 styles to choose from). If you purchase it anywhere else your conscience will hurt you to think you've slighted our invitation, and then we'll be out the cost of this "ad." Come!
